

Remove Limits Under Treaties, German Demand

Von Schleicher Says Reich Ready to Act For Security
URGES ARMS CUTS
Germany is Prepared to Reorganize Her Armed Forces

BY JOHN A. BOUMAN
Berlin—The voice of General Kurt von Schleicher, veteran of the Kaiser's armies, breaker of wild horses and power behind the throne of the von Papen government, was out in the open in the Reichstag election campaign today, with a note of defiance for the world.

In a radio address last night he served virtual notice on the world powers that unless Germany is granted equality and released from the limitations of the post-war treaties she will proceed to establish her own security by a reorganization of her armed forces.

Security for Germany, he said, could only be attained by the other powers scaling down their armaments to Germany's level, or by reorganizing—not increasing—Germany's own defenses.

A foreign office spokesman explained today what the general meant by reorganization.

"The provision of the Versailles treaty covering munition factories," he said, "make it obligatory to operate those factories uneconomically, and that results in a waste of army funds. General von Schleicher wants to achieve better results by more economical operation. That is what he means by reorganization."

In addition to that Germany can increase her security by permitting proper physical development of her youth, even without direct military training by putting young men in a position to help ward off the attack of a powerful opponent on what has been up to now an almost defenseless people.

He said the government had no intention of absorbing Adolf Hitler's storm troops into the army. The qualifications which determine the selection of the storm troops, he said, are quite different from those of the army.

Regarding the alternative of deductions of armaments of other powers to Germany's level, he said: "There aren't many who believe that miracle will happen."

"We shall take the other course," he added, "if the nation and equality are denied us in the future."

"Timid souls may object that it will cost money we cannot afford," he went on, "but to them I reply that a modern, relatively adequate defense force is not dearer than our present one under the Versailles treaty, which imposed some senseless conditions entailing useless and unproductive expense."

The general also informed the nation he was opposed to a military dictatorship. Such a government is out of the question, he said, because the only government possible is one supported by the broadest majority of the people.

"I am less a military man," he said, "than many ministers who, professing democracy, still put their faith in bayonets. To say that the Junkers (landed aristocrats) and the generals overthrew the previous cabinet: is an arrant lie."

"Nothing kills a soldier more than being dragged into politics. It has been said that I am trying to make the army a political instrument, but nothing is farther from my mind."

French apprehension of German organizations, he said, apparently referring to such groups as Adolf Hitler's National Socialist storm troops, is unfounded. Hitler was right, he said, in declaring that the Reichswehr (the army) was responsible for the defense of the nation.

Persons displaying rancor with political discontents predicted today that Sunday's election would not result in a majority in the Reichstag either for the right supporters of von Papen, including Hitler's Nazis, or the coalition of

Attack Claim of Scot to Portion Of Wendel Estate

Story Told by Thomas P. Morris Challenged By Counsel

New York—Counsel for the estate of the late Ella V. Von Wendel, multi-millionaire Fifth-avenue recluse, today launched an attack on the claim of Thomas Patrick Morris, 52-year-old Scotsman, that he was the son of John Gottlieb Wendel and entitled to sue for a share in the Wendel millions.

Morris testified in surrogate's court yesterday to his claim of relationship to the Wendels and introduced in evidence an old novel, within the covers of which is written a purported will bequeathing John Gottlieb's estate to Morris and reciting the alleged facts of Wendel's marriage to Mary Ellen Devine of Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1876.

Under cross-examination today Morris said he was certain Wendel gave him the book in Dundee, Scotland, in the middle of June, 1901, when Wendel went to the home of his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Morris.

"Where you introduced to him at that time?" Morris was asked.

"Introduced to him," Morris replied. "He hugged me and kissed me and asked me to take a walk with him."

Asked what became of the watch Morris said Wendel gave him, the witness replied he had broken it and tossed it into a drawer in the Morris home.

"I thank my foster brother, Bernard, took it later," he said. "Recently I wrote to him for information about the watch, but he did not reply."

"How did you break it?" "I carried it playing football," Morris answered.

"What can you play football?" the attorney asked.

"Yes," answered Morris, who limps. He extended a foot toward the attorney and said with an air of pride, "I can kick a football any time."

Checks Held Clue
John M. Harlan, of counsel for the estate, asked Morris if he would be surprised to learn that Wendel wrote checks in New York on June 4, 1901, and again in the middle of June, payable to New York creditors, and that he also wrote letters from Glasgow, N. Y., to New York employees during that month.

"I want to be perfectly fair with you," Harlan said. "If this meeting took place at any time but June, 1901, I want you to tell me."

"Well, when you talk that way I think that maybe I am wrong," Morris said. "But June, 1901, is right to the best of my recollection."

Harlan announced he would introduce checks and letters in evidence.

Morris admitted he did not know whether the handwriting of the will and the inscriptions in the gift book were the handwriting of John G. Wendel. He had never seen any other handwriting of the man he knew as his father, he said.

Morris said he could not say definitely how many times and in what years between 1884 and 1900 he supposed father visited him in Dundee, Scotland.

"Well, we'll tell you," Harlan said. "We'll prove that John G. Wendel never left the United States between 1873 and 1914, the year of his death. Does that surprise you?"

"It certainly does," Morris answered.

Sheboygan Falls Man Is Sentenced as Embezzler
Sheboygan—A sentence of from one to three years in prison was imposed upon Charles Lumpert, former Sheboygan Falls justice of the peace, by Judge Edward Voigt yesterday. Lumpert was found guilty of fraudulent issuance of checks and embezzlement.

69 Cadets Toll As German Ship Sinks in Storm

Youths Trapped in Schoolroom of Naval Training Barkentine

37 PERSONS RESCUED
Sudden Squall Turned Ship Over in Kiel Bay, Port Officials Told

Kiel, Germany—A group of buoys signifying tragedy bobbed on the surface of Kiel bay today over the spot where 69 German naval cadets drowned yesterday when the old three-masted windjammer Niobe, used as a training vessel, went down in a squall.

The 69 youths were trapped at their desks in the schoolroom between the decks when the Niobe sank in a twinkling in 11 fathoms of water.

Of six of those below decks saved themselves as the barkentine plunged. Thirty-seven in all were saved, including the captain, his lieutenant, 17 of the crew and 18 cadets. They were rescued by the steamer Therese Russ, which was nearby.

The Niobe was a war prize. Originally she was a four-master and was reconsecrated for a training ship. For two years she was commanded by Count Felix von Luckner, dubbed "The Sea Devil" for his exploits during the war.

The catastrophe is the third of its kind to overtake the navy. On Nov. 14, 1861, the school ship Amazon sank off Holland and 145 were lost. On Dec. 16, 1900, the Gletsenau was rammed near Malta with a loss of 40 drowned.

Tells of Ills of Rescues
Captain Mueller of the steamer Therese Russ reported to port authorities today how he rescued the 37 men floundering in the sea after the Niobe keeled over.

"It was 2:30 p. m., and the weather was good," he said. "The Do-X (German flying boat) had just passed over us. We made out the sailing vessel off the shore. After we saw the ship signaling I noticed a black cloud squall creeping down on the ship. At the same instant we saw the ship disappear. Turn to page 12 col. 3

Physician Tells Of Bribery Offer

Milwaukee Doctor on Stand in Misconduct Trial of Undertaker

Madison—Dr. E. W. Bentzien, Milwaukee, testified before the state board of health today at a reopened hearing of charges of professional misconduct against Ralph Feerick, Milwaukee undertaker, that he had been offered money to sign a death certificate at Feerick's parlors for Mrs. Anna Boddy, who died last February after a criminal operation.

Feerick faces revocation of his embalmer's license if the state board finds him guilty of any misconduct in the disposal of the woman's body. It had been testified that he had been offered $100 to sign a death certificate at Feerick's parlors for Mrs. Anna Boddy, who died last February after a criminal operation.

Dr. Bentzien said that the offer of money was made in Feerick's presence by John Busch, a personal friend, who was shown by previous testimony to have been one of those at the Jackson-st. address after Mrs. Boddy's death.

He said that Busch first offered him $50, later told him at the funeral parlors that he would pay $100 and still later offered him $200 but he refused because he thought the case obviously was one for the coroner to handle.

The testimony was introduced over the objections of Harold M. Wilkie, Madison, attorney for Feerick. Wilkie contended that the hearing had gone closed and that it was improper procedure to reopen the case at this time.

Strive to End Quarrel Of Bolivia, Paraguay
Buenos Aires—The ambassadors of Chile, Peru and Brazil visited the foreign office today while the Bolivian and Paraguayan ministers conferred in turn with Foreign Minister Saavedra Lamas supposedly over the recent flaring of the Gran Chaco boundary dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay.

Foreign Minister Lamas afterward said he was fearful of the outcome of the renewal of the dispute because neither Paraguay nor Bolivia could forget they were signatories of the Hague treaty and the Brand-Kellogg pact for outlawing war.

Damaged Schooner Is on Its Way Back to Chicago
Two Rivers—A 50-foot schooner Gavito, which was towed ashore yesterday by coast guardsmen after its sails had been damaged by a storm, was on its way back to Chicago today. The boat was one of the craft in the Chicago-Mackinac yacht race.

The yacht is owned by Arnold Kirkby, and piloted by W. S. Ahern, both of Chicago. Five other Chicago men were aboard Coast guardsmen said the vessel's sails had been torn and she was in danger of sinking. Repairs were made here.

The boat left Frankfort, Mich., Monday and was blown across the lake in the storm.

Boy's Story of Being Tied in Home Leads To Father's Arrest

Philadelphia—A testimony by an eight-year-old boy that he had been tied in his home for three days with a chain and a dog collar resulted today in his father, Stanley Wammarick, 48, being held in $1,000 bail on charges of aggravated assault and battery.

The boy, Stanley, Jr., was released by police yesterday after neighbors reported he was being mistreated. The father, a widower, said he had chained the boy to keep him from staying out at night. The lad denied he had been disoriented.

Utility Inquiries Delayed by Lack Of Staff Experts

Commission Says Insufficient Personnel Hampers Probes

Madison—An insufficient number of staff members prevents the expediting of several utility investigations in Wisconsin, the Public Service commission today informed the utility committee of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities.

The commission's explanation, given in a letter to E. J. Donnelly, chairman of the committee, was an answer to a suggestion on the part of the committee that more men be detailed to certain investigations.

The commission pointed out that it is engaged on three rate cases involving the Wisconsin Telephone company, the Wisconsin Gas and Electric company and the Wisconsin Public Service corporation, and two rate and finance cases involving the Wisconsin Hydro-Electric company.

"Except for the Wisconsin Telephone case," the commission said, "where an adequate staff of men was put into the field for the work, and to a lesser extent the case of the Wisconsin Power and Light company, in no major investigation have we enough staff members available to carry the investigation along at a rate which will insure an early disposition of these matters."

The commission pointed out that in addition to a limited appropriation it is given the power to assess costs of investigations to the utilities being investigated but that such assessments must be within certain bounds. The work, moreover, calls for experts who are not easily obtained, the commission said.

Hold U. S. Liable for Loss on Reservation

Shawano—An opinion holding that the federal government is liable for loss which is said he have resulted from the government's abandonment of selective cutting in the Menominee Indian reservation forests in favor of clean cutting has been received by the tribe's advisory board from the New York law firm of Hughes, Schurman and Dwight.

After years of dissatisfaction with the administration of their timber lands, the Menominees were authorized by congress in March, 1931, to employ attorneys to investigate charges of incompetent, uneconomical, and wasteful management.

Charles E. Hughes, Jr., former solicitor general of the United States, heads the firm employed.

The report is intended to be the basis of a bill to be introduced in the next congress authorizing the tribe to start suit against the United States.

Hammersley Not to Seek Democratic Nomination

Milwaukee—Three candidates remained today in the race for the Democratic nomination for governor following announcement of Charles E. Hammersley, Snodgrass, that he is not a candidate. The three men seeking the nomination are: Mayor A. G. Schmiedeman, Madison; W. B. P. bin, Milwaukee, and Leo Fox, Clinton.

Kick Devil Out of Farm Board, Wheat Queen Asks

Kansas City—A Kansas widow, who based a bribery suit to prove she is a "farm farmer," told the Shannon house committee today the only thing that would help the farmers out of her state is to kick the devil out of the farm board.

The witness Mrs. Ida Watkins of Sublette, early in her testimony, sought to impress members of the committee investigating government competition with private business they were listening to the words of the actual operator of a 4,800-acre wheat farm.

She rolled up a sleeve of her black dress, disclosing a bronzed, muscular arm.

"Get them if you don't think I'm a wheat grower, look at this arm, or ask any man in my country," she challenged.

Having thus qualified herself as a witness, Mrs. Watkins, sometimes called the Kansas "Wheat Queen," launched a vigorous attack on the Agricultural Marketing act and the farm board.

Asked by M. W. Borders, Sr., attorney, who is conducting the examinations of many witnesses, where she drew the line in cooperative marketing, she replied:

Bonus Seekers Still in Camp In Washington

Officials Fail to Agree on Means of Evicting War Veterans

WORKERS MARK TIME
Police Superintendent Says Action Depends on Treasury

Washington—The bonus army today apparently won an important victory toward retaining their camp on lower Pennsylvania-ave when District of Columbia commissioners and treasury officials failed to agree on means of evicting them.

Pennam D. Glassford, superintendent of police, said after the conference that "there will be no illegal use of the metropolitan police department in aiding any action to be taken against the veterans now in up to the treasury."

"There is now," Glassford said, "no certainty when any definite course will be decided upon."

The treasury, after several postponements, had decided upon evacuation at 7:30 this morning but nothing happened.

Glassford said he had been prepared to carry out any legal eviction order, but pointed out there is no provision under the District of Columbia laws by which the police could legally evacuate the bonus army.

A wrecking contractor wondered, too, while 40 laborers—laid drawing pay—sat around with nothing to do. On the way to the scene was a huge wrecking crane to demolish all standing structures under previously announced plans.

"Well, I haven't any orders to vacate them," Glassford said.

Major Edward Keyes was on the job as official observer for the treasury department. He said the orders went from the treasury to the district commissioners yesterday afternoon.

But they had not reached Glassford, so after trying unsuccessfully to reach the commissioners over the telephone, he returned to his office to await the delayed orders.

Big Crane Arrives
Later, the huge wrecking crane which swings a 4,000 pound projectile to demolish brick walls reached the camp and was driven up an alley to stop beside the first building to be demolished.

Immediately it was surrounded by a large number of veterans who viewed it with interest and christened the heavy projectile a "potato masher."

The police contingent of 50 men, ordered out early to help with the evacuation, was dismissed after hanging around the area for three hours with nothing to do.

Along both sides of Pennsylvania-ave hundreds of curious collected and watched the idle police.

Only one arrest was made. One of the followers of John Pace, leader of the radical group of the bonus army, encamped in another part of the city, went to the scene and attempted to make a speech.

He was seized by the military police of the bonus army and hauled away in a patrol wagon.

Cattle Smugglers Strive To Evade British Tariff

Belfast, Northern Ireland—Attempts to smuggle cattle from the Irish Free State into northern Ireland began today as a result of the recently inaugurated tariff war between the Free State and Great Britain.

There is a 20 per cent duty on shipments of cattle from the Free State into British territory.

About 50 head were seized by the Ulster constabulary at Forkhill, South Armagh, early this morning. The drivers abandoned the animals and escaped back over the border.

MELLON AT CAPITAL

Washington—Ambassador W. Mellon, ambassador to Great Britain, returned to Washington today on a vacation from his foreign post and immediately began conferences with his former cabinet associates.

Pomerene Named To Finance Body; Democrats Rule

Washington Wonders About Political Effects Of Appointment

Washington—The action of President Hoover in turning over control of the reconstruction corporation directorate to Democrats, by the appointment to the board yesterday of Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, was being weighed for political significance today in the capital.

Word from Cleveland was that the former senator would not be here to take his post until next week. Meanwhile, although keeping their opinions to themselves in general, for the present, legislators at the capitol conjectured whether the move would enter the presidential campaign.

Representative Rainey, the Democratic floor leader in the house, expressed the view that although men of his party allegiance will hold four of the seven directorships, the administration "can't dodge" responsibility for the new relief law that the corporation must administer.

There was no indication today when the last director, who must be a republican, will be appointed.

Rainey said Pomerene was a "man of unquestioned ability" but added:

"There isn't any question about responsibility for the existing relief law. The president has had his own way about the kind of relief law we should have. If it fails, the responsibility will be his. He can't dodge it. He vetoed the Garner relief bill."

Pomerene To Be Chairman
Pomerene, the president said, will be elected chairman of the $3,800,000 corporation's board which now lines up like this: Democrats—Pomerene, Harvey Couch of Pine Bluff, Ark., Jesse Jones of Houston, Texas, and Wilson McCarthy of Salt Lake City; Republicans—Secretary Mills of the treasury, and Gardner Cowles, Sr., of Des Moines, Iowa. The law specifies the party division must be four and three, so a member of the G. O. P. must be picked for the last vacancy.

Pomerene frequently has attracted national attention since he entered the senate in 1910, helping to frame the Federal Reserve system and the Federal Trade Commission act. He was a close friend of Woodrow Wilson and was chosen by President Coolidge to aid in prosecution of the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills oil lease cases.

As Pomerene's appointment was announced, the agriculture department finished its plans for handling a $10,000,000 fund to help finance agricultural credit corporations and livestock loan companies.

Corporations of at least $50,000 capital are to be set up. After getting federal loans they will rediscuss farmers' notes at the intermediate credit banks. Not much immediate demand for this money is expected, though, because of the new relief law provisions to establish 12 agricultural credit corporations capable of rediscussing to the extent of $260,000,000.

Sino-Jap Situation in Jehol Strained

Tokio—The Sino-Japanese situation in Jehol province, Manchuria, which recently appeared to be lessening grew tense again when Chinese military authorities failed to fulfill their pledge to secure the release of General Ishiwara, Japanese army representative who was kidnapped July 19.

A dispatch to the Reung News agency from Chinkow said Japanese military officials announced they had identified the captors of Ishiwara and they were to be transferred to Manchuria, Chang Hsiao-liang. For this reason serious trouble was expected unless the captives were freed soon.

Three Chinese railway workers were captured with Ishiwara returned to Chinkow, the dispatch said, and reported that they reported they were being held in a place of detention frequently to prevent a rescue of the Japanese official.

Mystery Shipment of Gold Made to America

London—A "mystery" shipment of 540,000 pounds in gold currency about $1,800,000 left Plymouth for New York today aboard the steamer Lafayette and the news of it caused much surprise on the London bullion market.

It was pointed out on the market that any transaction for sale of British gold at New York under the present exchange relation would represent a loss and therefore it was assumed this shipment represented a private account.

Bankers said they were equally in the dark and agreed it must represent a private transaction, possibly gold from India re-shipped from London.

Quarter Million Men to Get Work Building Roads

4,000 More to be Employed in State on Highway Construction

Chicago—The $120,000,000 federal appropriations to aid states in highway construction is expected to furnish 250,000 men with 30 hours of work each week for 11 months.

This was revealed in a national survey which indicated that highway construction would be tripled in many states by the federal appropriations. The states must match them in order to benefit by the government's action.

Relief workers throughout the country generally said they were enthusiastic over the plan, particularly because of the provision for a 30-hour week. This, they pointed out, would provide jobs for more men over a longer period of time.

Definite estimates were made by highway officials in 18 states on the number of additional men who would be put to work. Kansas estimated the number at 20,000 and California at 16,000. The other states giving definite figures were:

Arizona 3,000; Arkansas 5,000; Colorado 7,500; Florida 10,340; Louisiana 8,000; Minnesota 7,000; Mississippi 9,000; Nebraska 8,000; North Dakota 3,000; North Carolina 3,000; Rhode Island 400; Tennessee 5,000; Texas 4,500; Utah 2,000; West Virginia 1,000 and Wisconsin 4,000.

Nearly every other state in the Union reported that employment would be increased substantially. Definite estimates could not be made until checkups are made of the state money to be spent for labor and material.

Officials in various states said that, in addition to the thousands employed on the highways, other men would benefit by the work of manufacturing the machinery and material for the road construction program. Contracting companies were particularly happy over prospects for new jobs.

Doumer Assassin Sentenced to Die

Dr. Paul Gorguloff Convicted of Slaying French President

Paris—Dr. P. J. Gorguloff was found guilty today of the premeditated assassination of President Paul Doumer last May.

The court sentence was imposed on the assassin whose defense has been that he was merely trying to rescue the French nation from the clutches of the German empire.

Gorguloff said President Doumer was a traitor to the French people and that he was taking a good crack at the one jug "bank" which is there the First National, and it seems to us if you can put that over a good deal will be made in the bank at Detroit and it won't be long before our combined efforts

Seven Men Injured in Bay State Explosion

East Braintree, Mass.—Seven men were burned and injured, at least three seriously, when an explosion which rocked the south shore for miles occurred in an empty 50,000 gallon storage tank on the property of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal Company here today.

Five of the injured were cleaning the tank when the explosion occurred. It was feared one man would die. The origin of the blast was made the subject of an investigation.

Expect Cool Weather to Stay for Several Days

Milwaukee—Cool weather prevailed over Wisconsin again today and promised to remain for two or three days. Shifting winds caused a drop in temperature in Milwaukee from 90 to 75 p. m. Tuesday to 63 at 5 a. m. today, the lowest mark in 15 days. The lowest reading early today was 50 at Wauwatosa.

Peasant Party Leader Is Summoned by Carol

Bucharest, Rumania—Juliu Maniu, leader of the National Peasant party, was summoned by telephone today to come from Sinaia to luncheon with King Carol. It was said he would be asked to take over the post of premier in the new peasant government.

Old Enmities Being Buried By Europeans

Continent Apparently Concentrating on Reconstruction Problems

Washington.—Europe is showing many signs of burying old enmities in the interest of economic reconstruction.

Poland's signature of a non-aggression pact with Soviet Russia and negotiations between Rumania and the Soviet Union toward a similar agreement give hope that hundreds of miles of Russia's eastern boundary may soon cease to be an armed camp.

Poland is withholding ratification of the pact with Soviet Russia until Rumania and the Union reach a similar agreement, but the latter two are negotiating about their Bessarabian dispute with an earnestness which promises to bring results.

Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia have just entered into an economic union to better trade conditions through a common currency and the removal of tariff barriers.

For more than a decade these three countries have been striving to get some organization of the Baltic states. They tried to effect a combination including Finland and Poland, but distrust of Poland by Lithuania because of the seizure of Vilna prevented. Finland also feared Poland and dropped out of the negotiations.

Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia have a combined population of about 5,000,000 an area equal to that of Minnesota. The war destroyed the Russian empire in their boundaries and cut off a market in Russia for timber and agricultural products. Their ports were deserted and their railways destroyed first by the Germans and later in fighting with the Bolsheviks.

Consequently these courageous little countries which welcomed the opportunity Russia's collapse offered them only ruins upon which to build. Their mutual desire to get some place through economic agreements may prefer to the general European trend from guns and swords to plows and factories.

15 at "Twilight" Farm Conference

Sell Shows Results of Various Mixtures of Fertilizers

Fifteen farmers attended the "twilight" meeting at the county asylum farm last night, according to Gus Sell, county agents. The farmers were shown the results of fertilizer experiments on oat fields. Examination of the fields last night, Mr. Sell said, revealed that when an equal mixture of potash and phosphorus is used the best results are obtained. Three mixtures 0-20-20, 160 pounds to the acre; 0-20-0, 160 pounds to the acre; 0-20-0, 480 pounds to the acre, were used.

It was revealed Mr. Sell said that best results were obtained with 0-20-20, 160 pounds and 560 pounds to the acre. He said the latter method was probably too expensive to be practicable, but that the first was both practicable and profitable. Fair results were obtained with 0-20-10 and poor results with 0-20-0. Further check of the results of the various fertilizers will be made after the crop is harvested.

Start Improvement of State Trunk Highway 54

Work was started this week, according to Frank Appleton, highway commissioner, on the improvement of Highway 54 between Seymour and Shiloh. A total of 13.9 miles of this highway is to be improved with a black top surfacing. Materials being purchased from contractors who must deliver them to the job. The work is being done by crews under direction of the county highway department.

Approximately $85,000 is being spent on this job, the funds being furnished by the state highway department.

It is to be placed over the crushed stone base. Mr. Appleton said he expected that placing of tar on the road would start this week. Laying of the crushed stone already has been started.

Didn't Have License: Proprietor Fined $50

Louis Sherman, 915 E. John-st., was fined $50 and costs by Judge F. W. Hennemann in municipal court this morning when he pleaded guilty of operating a soft drink parlor at 915 E. John-st. without a license. If he does not pay the fine he must spend 30 days in the county jail. Sherman was arrested this morning by Sergeant John Duval and Officer George Behrendt.

Start Quarterly Audit Of Outagamie-co Books

The quarterly audit of the Outagamie-co books was started this morning at the office of John E. Hantschel, county clerk, by the firm of Riley, Penner and Benton, Milwaukee accountants. Carl Freck and Lloyd Birkett are in charge of the work, which will take several days.

Birthday Greetings Among Lightest of President's Tasks

Washington.—(P)—Probably the easiest of President Hoover's jobs is remembering the birthday or national fête day of every fellow president, king or emperor in the world.

As a matter of fact it's a system—set up just to jog his memory to avoid the breach of international etiquette that would ensue if no telegram of congratulation were dispatched on such a day.

In the state department, a few pages from the president's office, what might be called a "birthday book" is kept in the hands of a ceremonial officer, skilled in the correct phraseology of international felicitation.

It is the job of this officer—Charles Lee Cook—to inform the White House of which birthday and independence day is which, and to see that the president's messages don't get into the error of repeating themselves year and year.

Drafting messages is comparatively easy as almost without exception they are brief. Last Saturday, for instance, in his imperial day, Haile Selassie I, emperor of Ethiopia, enjoyed a birthday and the following messages were awaiting him when he awoke in Addis Ababa:

"Permit me to extend to your majesty on this birthday anniversary cordial congratulations of the government and people of the United States and my own personal greetings, Herbert Hoover."

Sometimes two or three messages are dispatched in a week, and sometimes almost none in a month.

Walther League Chooses Chicago For '33 Conclave

Concludes Formal Business At Convention in Los Angeles

Los Angeles.—(P)—With the election of officers and selection of the 1933 convention city, the international Walther League, except delegates to sectional conferences, foreclosed the convention hall today for ocean beaches and other places of entertainment.

The convention, which closes officially Thursday, heard managers of various league activities read reports on summer conferences, education, sanitariums and hospitals.

Eight entertainers in the league's oratorical contest completed delivering their speeches and judges were expected to announce the winner at the close of today's session.

The Rev. Erwin Umbach, considered the leading light of the Lutheran young people's organization, in his report on the educational department, outlined what each league maintained in lecture tours, a short story writing contest and other endeavors.

E. J. Gallmyer, Ft. Wayne, Ind., postmaster, was reelected president of the international organization yesterday and Chicago was selected as the next convention city.

Next year's convention will open July 16 at Soldiers field in connection with the Century of Progress exposition.

Pick Regional Chiefs
Four regional vice presidents were elected. They are: Herbert Kuenne, Baltimore, Md., Eastern district; J. H. Wendland, Inglewood, Calif., Western district; John Albright, Kitchener, Ontario, Northern district, and W. H. R. Hecht, Miami, Fla., Southern district.

Other officers elected are: W. F. Fenske, Detroit, Mich., recording secretary; Miss Dorothy Selle, Milwaukee, Wis., assistant recording secretary; F. A. Schack, Fort Wayne, Ind., treasurer; E. H. Englebrecht, River Forest, Ill., field secretary; William Stredmann, Menasha, Minn., and H. O. Klein, Springfield, Ill., executive board.

W. F. Wehrman of Chicago, director of the junior department of the league, reported 30 new societies were enrolled during the year, bringing the junior league membership to 14,000, nearly one-third of the entire membership of the Walther league.

Sectional meeting reports revealed 28 summer camps have been chartered during the current season and that plans are under way to increase the number, the latest being the establishment of a camp in Australia.

A resolution commemorating the death of Gustavus Adolphus, defender of Protestantism, who was killed in the battle of Lutzen 163 years ago, was adopted by the delegates.

DePere War Veteran to Receive Compensation

Information received here this morning by Congressman George J. Schneider reveals that the U. S. Veterans bureau has recognized the compensation claim of Clarence Riley, DePere, and that the World War veteran has been rated permanently disabled from a disease contracted while in the service. Riley is asking compensation from Fed. 1, 1931. Bergers disease, when the veteran says he contracted in the war, necessitated amputation of one leg, and affected the other limb, according to Congressman Schneider. He will be eligible for a total of $157.50 per month as soon as the case is completely settled.

Harris-st., was recently elected Niagara county commander of the American Legion at the annual county convention held at Fort Niagara. Mr. Stulp has been past commander of the John J. Welch post in Niagara Falls. After attending the state convention at Brooklyn, Aug. 22, Mr. Stulp will come to Appleton to spend a week's vacation with his mother.

Youth Slays His Aunt for Revenge, Officials Learn

Attempts to Kill Uncle to Avenge Wrong Done His Father

San Jose, Calif.—(P)—A strange story of revenge which led a 20-year-old youth to kill his aunt and attempt to slay his uncle, a wealthy Manila importer and exporter, to avenge a wrong done his father, was told by San Jose authorities today.

The youth, George Douglas Templeton, Jr., University of California student, authorities said, confessed in Oakland, Calif., where he was arrested early today.

Calm and apparently without regret, he was brought here to be charged with murder for the killing early yesterday of Mrs. Lillian Babcock.

Meanwhile, William R. Babcock, head of the Philippine delegation to the Olympic games and former business partner of Templeton's father, lay dangerously wounded in a Palo Alto hospital where a blood transfusion was ordered.

The desire for revenge, the confession related, hinged on the five-year litigation between Babcock and George D. Templeton, Sr., formerly partners in Babcock and Templeton, Manila importing and exporting firm of which Babcock is now president.

The death of Babcock and his wife, authorities quoted youth Templeton as saying, would not only avenge a loss of a "large sum of money" by the boy's father, but would rehabilitate his finances through inheritance.

The story of the planning of the attack on the Babcocks as they slept at Los Altos, near here, and the assault of early yesterday morning, as retold by authorities, follows:

Planned Crime
Last Sunday young Templeton visited the home of his aunt, Mrs. Walter Buckish, whose husband is commissioner of schools of the Philippine islands, where the Babcocks were visiting. A Filipino houseboy showed the youth about the home as he carefully studied the scene of his contemplated crime.

Monday he bought a 12-inch knife—such as is used for killing cattle.

He also bought a five gallon can of kerosene with which he intended to fire the house. His intended the others in the house would escape.

The youth excused himself about midnight from the Oakland lunch room where he worked and drove to the Buckish home.

He found his way to the bedroom where the Babcocks slept only after turning on the lights, and made so much noise he was surprised the household was not awakened.

He stabbed his uncle, then struggled to pull down the covers which his aunt had pulled over her head before attacking her. By that time Babcock, groped with him, and the youth dropped the knife and fled.

At 4 o'clock a. m. he awakened a friend, A. R. Fitzpatrick at his ranch home, saying he had had a fight with his uncle and wanted to wash. This story, related to Sheriff William J. Emig, led to the arrest of young Templeton in the lunch room early today.

Manila dispatches said the boy was known there as a model youth. He was last there four years ago, leaving two years after his father's active connection with Babcock and Templeton company ended.

Back to Jobs Movement in Many Plants

Brighter Prospects Indicated as Factories Recall Workers

Youngstown, O.—Four sheet mills of the Republic Steel corporation began operating at Warren, Ohio, today, affording at least a few days work for more than 100 men.

The plant has been operating 13 days since Saturday, making time for the autumn canning season.

General operations in this district remain at a low ebb, with the average of all plants not higher than 15 per cent.

Bound Brook, N. J.—The Middle Brook Woolen mills increased its force from 20 persons to 175 this week and expects to hire about 50 more to keep pace with orders for goods. The workers had been working irregularly. The increased force will work full time.

Hazleton, Pa.—Idle for several months the ribbon works at Hazleton, near here resumed operations today with part of the force back. Management of business in the silk industry has brought some orders and officials said more employees will be taken on as conditions improve.

Conviction is Upheld In Conspiracy Finding

New York.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today unanimously affirmed the conviction of Harry C. Cotten for conspiracy and use of the mails to defraud in the sale of stock of the Cotten Butte Mines, Inc.

The court also affirmed Cotten's four year sentence and the conviction and $5,100 fine against Cotten Butte Mines, Inc.

POLITICAL FORTUNES HANG IN BALANCE

Two men who may succeed to high posts as a result of a swing of the political pendulum are Lieut. Governor Lehmann (left) of New York State and Joseph W. McKee (right), president of the New York City Board of Aldermen. Lehmann would become Chief Executive of his state in the event of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt's resignation or election to the Presidency, and he also is expected soon to announce his candidacy for the governorship in the next election. McKee would be the successor to Mayor James J. Walker of New York in case the latter is removed as a result of charges against him which are to be reviewed soon by Governor Roosevelt.

Plan Story for Debut of Chaplin's Sons in Films

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood.—Frank Craven, who acts when he isn't writing, has a nice job on his hands.

It is to write a screen story to feature two little boys he has never seen, two very famous little boys, and their mother, who is equally well-known. It is the story that will initiate the two young sons of Charles Chaplin to their father's profession.

Craven, sitting in his office at the studio the other morning, admitted he hadn't the shadow of an idea what sort of story he would write. But he was smilingly unworried.

"I know I'll get it written," he said. "The mechanical job of putting a story on paper never worries me. The only question in my mind

Manchoukuo Puts Out Own Stamps In Postal Crisis

Japan to Handle Foreign And China-Bound Mail For Pu-Yi Regime

Harbin, Manchuria.—(P)—New Manchoukuo postage stamps appeared here today following the suspension of Chinese postal service throughout Manchuria.

Some of them bore the portrait of Henry Pu-Yi, China's former boy emperor and now chief of the Manchoukuo government and others were engravings of Manchurian scenes.

It was announced that since the Manchoukuo regime is not recognized abroad Japan hereafter will handle all foreign and China bound mail for the Pu-Yi regime. This announcement was taken in some quarters to be equivalent to a practical form of Japanese recognition of the Pu-Yi government.

Americans and other foreigners entering or leaving Manchuria henceforth will be required to secure Manchoukuo visas at a cost of $5.

A new Manchoukuo paper currency also appeared in circulation today.

Banditry, kidnapping and looting continues fire throughout the territory. Three Japanese railway officials were kidnapped here today. Americans never venture outside Harbin unarm.

The Pu-Yi government decided today to adopt the American electric chair method of executing criminals instead of shooting or decapitation.

Today 5,000 Russian soldiers along the Chinese Eastern railway appealed to George C. Hansen, the American consul general, to lead the Japanese and Manchoukuo authorities for permission to organize a voluntary defense force to save them from annihilation by Chinese bandits who they said already had kidnapped 95 of their number and killed 36.

Brown County Fair to Start on August 27

The Northeastern Wisconsin fair will open its gates Aug. 27 at the Brown-co fairgrounds. One of the outstanding features of the fair this year will be the sensational Schreyer revue to be given in front of the grand stand.

Schooler's revue, "Sensations of 1932," according to John Greenwood, secretary of the fair this year, is by far the most unique and brilliant of shows that have ever been presented here.

Recognized artists will take part in the production, which includes chorus work as well as individual presentations. More than 300 actors and actresses were interviewed before final selections were made for this year's production.

Hitler Wants to Change Germany's Diplomatic Plan

Present Diplomats Would be Ousted if Nazi Leader Wins Election

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of three articles on Adolf Hitler, written to show what manner of man looms on the July 31 elections horizon in Germany. His estimates claim that he will be made chancellor of the Reich after the elections. This article discusses his probable foreign policy.

BY LOUIS F. LOCHNER
Munich.—(P)—Germany is to win her freedom from post-war restrictions, a complete break must be made from the methods employed by German diplomats since the founding of the republic, says Adolf Hitler, chief of the national socialists.

"When the revolution broke out in November, 1918," Hitler wrote recently, "there was raised the flag of illusions which has since been flying over all foreign acts of German governments. It was one of the few who years ago dared expose these illusions in public."

The signing of the treaty of Versailles, the passive resistance in the Ruhr, the Dawes and Young plans, the policy of demonstrating good will in meeting reparations until Germany's inability to pay was demonstrated—all this, for which Rathenau, Stresemann, Curtius and Brüning stood, rested upon illusions, according to Hitler.

"It was an illusion to surrender the navy and the commercial fleet in the hope of seeing it returned," he wrote, "an illusion to disarm in the expectation that France would do likewise."

"It was an illusion to expect help from a world conscience, from the League of Nations, or from any conference."

"It was an illusion to sign the peace treaty or the assumption that it was merely a formal document and did not mean the destruction of German economy by France."

"It was an illusion to think during the Ruhr struggle that an army of occupation could be chased away by a general strike."

"It was an illusion to sign the Dawes pact and to believe in the phantom of a recovery of German business that was to be made possible thereby."

"The hopes built upon Locarno were an illusion, just as the Young plan rested upon illusion only."

Just what Hitler proposes to do in case he gains power has never become quite clear, for the Nazi chief argues that by exposing his hand prematurely he would invite enemies might profit from his "traces." But in his sensational talk with Anglo-Saxon newspapermen on December 4, 1931, when many predicted that this press conference presaged an early seizure of the government, Hitler explained his foreign aims thusly:

"When we national socialists seize power we shall, first of all, tell the world the absolute and undiluted truth about Germany's situation."

"We'll sign nothing whereof we cannot assume full responsibility. We'll rather risk defaulting on black mail and foreign pressure than every sort of sign anything that exceeds our ability."

"Of course, we cannot get along without negotiations. We, too, will have to sit down at a table with foreign powers. But they will know in advance that we won't sign anything that is extorted from us."

"As to American or other foreign bond holders, they need not fear for their holdings, provided commercial debts are given priority over political debts."

Forwards Relief Data To Governor LaFollette

Information regarding Appleton's food relief program has been sent to Governor Philipp LaFollette by Mayor John Goodland, Jr. Governor LaFollette is making a detailed study of relief programs in Wisconsin in an effort to ascertain how much this state should request from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for relief work. The federal government has appropriated $300,000,000 for relief work.

Data submitted to the governor by Mayor Goodland shows that in 1929 the city spent $11,214.68; 1930, $17,569.15; 1931, $29,345.45, and for the first six months of this year, $32,699.28. He also reported that the Appleton Relief and Welfare council has spent $13,567.57 for relief work. He reported that this organization had only enough money left for its program until Oct. 1.

Hot Spell Ruins Fishing In Nearby Lakes, Streams

The torrid blast of the past two weeks has warmed the water in nearby rivers and lakes to such an extent that anglers are having little luck. Monday night's rain and the "break" in the hot spell was welcomed, however.

Partridge lake at Fremont has been one of the most popular places for fishermen this month. Many black bass have been removed from the sloughs, and many large pickerel have been caught. This is the first season in years that black bass have been caught in large numbers in that lake, anglers claim.

Pike and perch fishing in Lake Winnebago has been hurt by the torrid blast. Only an occasional pike is caught, and the perch are few, anglers claim. But fishermen who visit Lake Winnebago do not go strikeless for the sheephead are plentiful, it is reported.

Visit Poygan
A number of local fishermen have been frequenting Lake Poygan. Perch have been biting fairly well in spite of the hot spell, and anglers have been getting fair catches.

Although there are many Appleton fishermen who for the first time in years will not visit their fishing haunts in the northwoods on their vacations this season because of the depression, there are those who are satisfied with week-end expeditions.

Among the most popular lakes, which only a two or three hours drive from Appleton are Pickeral, Post, Berry, Shawano, Stone, Rolling Stone and a number of others surrounding the Menominee Indian reservation.

Book Attractions For Badger Fair

Auto and Horse Racing Among Features for 1932 Program

Milwaukee.—great national racing circuit organized by the Wisconsin State fair and other expositions in the midwest will bring the 1932 Badger fair some of the biggest auto racing thrills in history when the first race starts on Sunday afternoon, August 28. A second day's auto racing is announced on Tuesday, August 30 during state fair week, according to manager R. E. Ammon.

For years, the big state fairs have moved gradually toward such a plan but 1932 has seen the consummation of the project which makes available total prize money of $20,000. Wisconsin State fair is offering the largest prizes of any midwestern fair with purses of $4,000 for the two days and with two world's records broken at last year's fair, competition is expected to bring out the most sensational races ever held in Wisconsin.

Every event will be open to all with certain standards of speed required as is the practice of the great Indianapolis speedway and other big national tracks.

Drivers will come to Wisconsin from the Iowa state fair and will then proceed to Nebraska, Minnesota, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana. Over 50 drivers have been licensed for the circuit, and 50 more are expected to register before the racing season starts.

U. S. Citizens Held to Blame For Communism

Their Superior Attitude is At Fault, John Yonan
Tells Club

The blame for the growth of communism, racketeers and the presence of surly foreigners in this country was placed at the feet of American citizens by John Yonan, Appleton importer, and Persian by birth, who criticized the superior attitude and indifference of Americans toward foreigners in the United States in the light of his own experiences. Mr. Yonan addressed Rotarians Tuesday noon at Northern hotel.

His talk took the nature of a plea, in which he, as a naturalized citizen, appealed to his countrymen to show themselves as men of character and bigness, to regard the foreigners as equals and teach them to become worthy American citizens with a desire to abide by the law.

He criticized citizens for their shortsightedness in not assisting the foreign element as he pointed out that 6,000,000 non-citizens live in this country, people who will have larger families than Americans will ever have, who are being taught by aliens to break the law. He also pointed out that the children of these people will form the backbone of a communistic thought or lawbreakers because they will remember their parents' sufferings in a strange land and couple this with education.

"The alien's first experience of America is at Ellis Island, where third class immigrants are treated like prisoners," he said as he painted the picture foreigners receive of the new country in which they are shunned, in which they must surmount obstacles of race and skin as well as the lack of knowledge of the language, laws and customs. He told of his own experiences when he came in 1919, a dark skinned stranger who faced loneliness and unfriendliness for a long time.

Greedy For Money

"Why shouldn't there be gangsters," he declared, "I might have been a gangster if I had not met finally a man of character who invited me to become a citizen of this country. You will find the foreigner greedy for money and not suffering today. If they do suffer, they will outsuffer you because they know how to suffer. They have stamina. "Twenty-five different languages are spoken in the United States today. Hordes come into Ellis Island into a strange land about which they know nothing.

"We blame politicians for the condition the country is in and the great strain we are under today, but citizens are failing to try to teach their non-citizens to be law-abiding."

He pointed out that the children of many of these foreigners are industrious and desire an education for which they work. "Money can't help solve the problem," he said. "These foreigners become a part of us when they come here to live. Don't look down on them, you are not better than they. That is why communism is growing and increasing at the University of Wisconsin and other universities and colleges throughout the country."

Sherwood 4-H Club Plans Annual Fair

Event Expected to Attract Large Crowd to Village

The annual fair and picnic, staged as a public event by the Wide Awake 4-H club of Sherwood, will be held in that village on Aug. 13. The Sherwood club, organized and sponsored by the Sherwood State bank, is one of the largest and most active clubs in this section of the state.

The program will open at 10 o'clock in the morning with the judging of calves, pigs, sheep and chickens, raised by the various club members as club projects. Judges will be Prof. Arlie Mucks of the agricultural department of the University of Wisconsin and A. L. McMahon, teacher of agriculture at Chilton high school. At noon a picnic dinner will be served at Steffen's park.

At 1 o'clock the winners of the contest will be given silver loving cups and gold prizes with presentation being made by E. J. Schomberg, president of the bank. This will be followed by talks by Professor Mucks, Mr. McMahon, A. C. Murphy, George J. Schaefer and others. At 3 o'clock there will be a ball game between teams from Darby and Sherwood for the championship of the town of Harrison. The Chilton high school band will play an all-day concert at Steffen's park.

Appleton Firm Given Winnebago-co Contract

The contract for widening bridges and culverts on Highway 41 between Oshkosh and Marquette Corners, three miles south of that city, was let yesterday by the Winnebago-co highway committee to the Wunderlich and Blick Construction company of Appleton. Three culverts, three bridges with spans less than 20 feet, and two bridges with spans more than 20 feet are to be widened. Work which is to start at once, will be done on one side of the bridge or culvert at a time so traffic will not have to be detoured.

SEEK STOLEN GOODS

Police here have been asked to watch for the thieves who stole 500 pounds of scrap copper, brass and aluminum from a Manitowoc junkyard the night of July 3. It is expected, Manitowoc officials said that the thieves will attempt to dispose of the stolen goods in some Fox river valley city.

Meeting Tour Party To Reach Appleton From Abroad Monday

Tourists on the Meeting educational pilgrimage to Europe will return from their trip abroad next Monday, according to word received at the office of Meeting Tours today. This is the second annual pilgrimage, and 50 teachers from Wisconsin and Minnesota made the trip this year, leaving Appleton on June 28 and sailing from Quebec on the Empress of Australia. In Europe they visited France, Belgium, Holland and England before sailing for home last Saturday on the Duchess of Bedford. The tourists will arrive in Montreal Saturday and reach Appleton Monday morning.

The tour this year was made via the Soo Line railroad, Canadian Pacific railroad and Steamship line with the Travel Guild, Inc., of Chicago, handling the European arrangements.

Plane to Fly Passengers From Appleton to Chicago

Changing its policies, the Northwest Airways, Inc., which operates a line through the Fox river valley, has decided that if enough passengers purchase tickets in this part of the valley the daily plane will travel through to Chicago instead of only to Milwaukee, according to word received at the Appleton Chamber of Commerce. Heretofore the airplane remained in Milwaukee, its final stop of the day, and passengers were obliged to transfer to the Twin Cities plane for the trip to Chicago.

Under the new plans it is now possible for passengers to purchase tickets at the chamber of commerce office. Radio communication between Appleton and the pilot at Green Bay also will be established, it was announced.

Singler Will Talk in 3 Northern Counties

W. M. Singler, president of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk pool, is scheduled to make four addresses in three northern counties Friday and Saturday. He will speak in Taylor, Price and Ashland-co's, addressing meetings of farmers' groups in efforts to organize local units of the milk pool. On Friday Mr. Singler will talk at Westboro and Ogemaw and on Saturday at Park Falls and Ashland. The meeting at Ashland is the state convention of the Wisconsin Society of Equity.

Towns, Cities Villages Get Share of Tax

Almost Two-Thirds of Collection of $160,000 in June Goes to State

Checks covering the amounts due towns, cities and villages as their share of the individual and corporation income taxes collected during June by Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, county treasurer, were mailed out yesterday. The total collected in June was $160,022.76. The total to be collected is $215,262.05 in individual taxes and $134,749.79 in corporation taxes.

Of the amount collected by Miss Ziegenhagen last month, the state takes almost two-thirds or $103,611.90. Included in the state's share is $10,873.32 which goes into the teacher's retirement fund. The county receives $9,068.52, leaving approximately $45,000 for distribution among the towns, cities and villages. Under the state law the towns, cities and villages are to receive 50 per cent of the tax; the state 40 per cent; and the county 10 per cent. In addition, however, the state gets the entire amount of the teachers' retirement fund surtax and the entire emergency relief tax.

The state's share of the income taxes collected in June includes: $58,495.94 emergency tax; $15,383.13 as its share of the corporation tax; and $2,614.76 as a surtax on individuals; $20,888.71 as its share of the corporation tax and $8,258.86 as the surtax on corporation incomes. Corporations do not pay the emergency tax.

City gets $29,000. More than half of the $45,000 distributed to the various districts of the county is paid to Appleton, which receives $24,885.91. Of this amount $18,748.52 is the city's share of the corporation tax, while $6,137.39 is the city's share of the individual tax. The next largest amount received by a community was paid to Kaukauna, which received $11,432.33. $3,000 of this amount is the city's share of the corporation tax and $8,432.33 as its share of the individual tax.

Four towns, Kaukauna, Center, Bovina and Vandenberg did not receive any corporation tax. The smallest amount of corporation tax received by any district was $5.11 paid to the town of Hortonville, while the smallest amount of individual tax to any community was $1.89 paid to the town of Maine.

Following is a list showing the payments to each town, city and village:

The Real McCoy

Here's Norman Selby, 50, the Kid McCoy of prize-ring fame, on the day he left San Quentin prison to become physical director in a Detroit industrial plant. He served 12 years for the slaying of Mrs. Teresa Moss in Los Angeles. He kept in condition in prison by workouts and as a fire chief of the prison brigade.

See Contrast in Personalities of Two Candidates

Hoover Is Stodgy Conservative, While Roosevelt Has Charm

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington—Franklin D. Roosevelt and Herbert Hoover will present a fascinating contrast in personalities to the voters during the 1932 presidential campaign.

There is little comparison between them and if the presidency were to be awarded on the basis of vibrant platform manner, aggressive charm, happy and disarming smiles, sympathetic approach to the needs of the people, and splendidly handsome features and crusading fervor, it would be just too bad for Mr. Hoover.

Roosevelt has all those things. He has more "it" than any nominee who has appeared on the scene in at least a couple of decades. He is such a handsome fellow that one of his main tasks in this campaign may be to prove that he is not "beautiful but dumb."

Serious Hoover
Hoover is colorless. He stirs few warm emotions in the human breast. His smiles are few, fleeting and often a bit sour. His platform manner is heavy and dull. He has few things to say that are new. His methods are usually a shade of the stodgy conservative. And he does not, to be gracious about it, wear the mantle of Rudolph Valentino.

Unhappily for Roosevelt, perhaps, and most assuredly to the benefit of Hoover, this is not a campaign in which many voters are going to toss their ballots to a candidate because he happens to be sweet and pretty and ingratiating.

Personal charm probably has slumped in value as sharply as most of the issues on the stock market. Millions of voters are worrying just as fretfully as Hoover is worrying, and Roosevelt will have to show a great deal of stuff along with that charming personality.

"Wishy-Washy" Charge
The word went round before the Chicago convention that Roosevelt was a weak, vacillating, wishy-washy opportunist. An incredible number of persons—even among the "forgotten man" class, the men in the street, the ordinary men and women who meet every day—have been impressed by that charge against Roosevelt which has been so widely made.

Even many of the delegates who had been elected or instructed to vote for Franklin D. had come to believe it. There was very little enthusiasm for him just before the nomination.

Hardly a delegate remained without a distinct second choice in mind. The attack on the big cities was very likely demonstrated by the gallery cheers for such picturesque figures as Smith and Ritchie and their boos for Roosevelt. I talked with many such men and women as were in those galleries and their one complaint was that Roosevelt was a "passy-doer" or a "weak knee."

"Hoover's Chance"
Then there's Hoover, the super-skipper hero of a terrible storm such as the Republican publicists love to describe him, but still the president of the United States who has at least taken stabs at the depression. He has had a lot of experience with it, probably has without which some measures would have been a lot worse. He has been a lot worse and he has been a lot better to offer.

The times are such that the personal characteristics of such a man, unless they are construed as conditioning his service to his country, are not likely to have any adverse effect on his candidacy.

Happy Plane Dash
Nevertheless Roosevelt certainly strengthened himself by his airplane dash to the Chicago convention, his ringing speech of hope to the people and the party, his call to arms directed at a progressive Democracy, his confident and joyous aspect as he began his battle. He looked like a much better bet than the pre-convention Roosevelt.

One studied him intently and wondered whether he might not make a far more impressive candidate for election than for nomination.

There were things in his manner, his language and his gestures which reminded you of Al Smith.

Wholesalers and Retailers Make Plans for Outing

Meet at Appleton Thursday And Drive to Sherwood Forest Resort

Fox and Wolf river valley wholesale and retail merchants will close up shop or at least turn their places of business over to the "help" and go to Sherwood Forest resort, Green Lake, Thursday, for their sixteenth annual stag outing. In case of rain the event will be postponed to Aug. 4. Merchants will be from Appleton, Kimberly, Little Chute, Kaukauna, Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha, Waupaca, New London, Shawano, and Clintonville.

The men will assemble at 8 o'clock Thursday morning at the Lincoln school grounds on N. Oneida-st. Banner and streamers will be given out by a band and orchestra furnish music and Major John Goodland will welcome the merchants. At 9 o'clock they will start out, headed by a motorcycle officer who will escort them all the way to Green Lake. The bands and orchestras will be on trucks. An automobile mechanic will bring up the rear and help any motorists who get into difficulties.

The group will drive through the Appleton business district as it leaves town, and will stop at minutes at various points where the boys play one number. Stops are scheduled at Menasha, Neenah, Oshkosh, Omro, and Berlin at which place the group will inspect the Carnation Milk plant. Luncheon will be served at the Sherwood Forest hotel.

After lunch a baseball between the Retailers and Wholesalers will be played, there will be a three-legged race, sack race, hop, skip and jump, shot put, potato race, wheelbarrow race, and other contests. Wrestling and boxing will complete the program.

At 5 o'clock the men are scheduled to make a tour of Green Lake on a specially chartered boat, and dinner will be served at the hotel on return. After the meal the famous Kangaroo court will be in session with Emil Gerdes of Oshkosh as judge. On the way home there will be an hour's stop for a concert and fire works at Ripon and the groups will return to Appleton about 10:30.

L. D. Segal, Appleton, is general chairman of the picnic.

POLICE HELD IN "THIRD DEGREE" DEATH

These four Nassau County, N. Y., police officers who took part in the questioning of Hyman Stark, suspected bandit, before he died of a fractured larynx, have been held on second degree murder charges. Left to right are Detective Harry Zander, Detective Leslie W. Persall, Lieut. Jesse Mayforth, and Detective Charles Wesser. Thirteen members of the force, under suspicion in connection with the prisoner's death, were charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice and seven were held on second-degree assault charges. Justice Meier Steinbrink described the case as "a shameful performance" and expressed the belief that Stark had died as a result of a beating he received at police headquarters.

Roosevelt's First Campaign Talk in Albany on July 30

Speech Will Not be Considered Formal Opening of Campaign

New York—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt will make his first political talk since he accepted the Democratic presidential nomination at Albany, on July 30 at Albany.

Roosevelt headquarters announced today that the governor would speak on that date from 8 to 8:30 p. m. in eastern standard time, the address being broadcast over the WEAF-NBC network.

Although this will be the first political talk since the convention, Roosevelt headquarters said it would be "informal" and was not considered as the formal opening of the campaign. The subject will be the Democratic program.

It is the governor's belief, said Louis Howe, Roosevelt's political secretary, "that the platform in its brevity and clearness and the soundness of its principals is the best campaign argument the party possesses."

"Gov. Roosevelt wants all the voters to understand what it says and what it means."

W. A. Julian, Democratic national committeeman from Columbus, Ohio, was at Roosevelt headquarters today. The purpose of his visit was unofficially reported to be an effort to arrange for Gov. Roosevelt to speak in Columbus on Aug. 20, during the state convention.

Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, N. J., recently reported that it had been agreed the opening speech of the campaign would be delivered by Gov. Roosevelt at Sea Girt, N. J., on Aug. 27.

Reports from Albany, however, were to the effect that two major speeches would be delivered in August with the first tentatively scheduled for the middle west, perhaps at Columbus.

Gov. Roosevelt has as a luncheon guest today Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts, who placed the name of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith in nomination at the Chicago convention.

It was understood that two of the major speeches will be delivered in August with the first tentatively scheduled for the middle west, perhaps at Columbus, during the Democratic state convention. No date for the convention has been set. It may be held as early as Aug. 18. Mr. Roosevelt has accepted an invitation to talk at the New Jersey rally at Sea Girt on Aug. 27. Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, sponsor of the event, predicted a crowd of 100,000.

Roosevelt Program
Gov. Roosevelt has signified his intention to take up a specific major issue in each of the more important addresses, selecting for his theme the issue of paramount importance in that section of the country. Other cities that are being considered for the talks include Boston, New York City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, Kansas City, Portland, Indianapolis, Denver, St. Paul, Milwaukee and Philadelphia.

The Roosevelt forces are represented as believing that all of the 48 states are battle grounds. The leaders give the governor a chance in all of them.

Convinced by the trip last April to St. Paul and the later northward journey from Warm Springs, Ga., that observation car appearances of Mr. Roosevelt with brief informal talks was an effective way to let the country become acquainted with the candidate, the Democratic campaign directors are preparing plans to have him speak at as many towns as possible. The year car likely will be equipped with loudspeakers.

Roosevelt's campaign captains hoped that out of today's meeting with Ely would come the Massachusetts man's endorsement of the New York governor's campaign. Ely has not yet said he would support the Roosevelt-Garner ticket. He was one of Smith's most ardent supporters.

Needs Ely's Support
With Ely's support, the Democratic candidate's campaign managers feel Roosevelt will stand a better chance of carrying Massachusetts. Ordinarily heavily Republican, Massachusetts in 1928 swung strongly to Al Smith. Smith carried the state by a popular vote

Peary, Adventure Craft, Prosiac Survey Boat Now

Sandusky, O. (AP)—The Peary, a "soldier of fortune" among ships and partner in glamorous adventures of men, has been reduced to the dull tasks of a survey craft on Lake Erie.

Built in 1918 as a mine sweeper for the French government, the Peary's war record was interrupted before it started by the armistice.

In 1921 she was taken by a party of big game hunters on an African trip.

She was taken to Greenland in 1924 by Admiral Richard Byrd who made a flight over the north pole on the expedition. Two years later she was taken by W. H. Bramley of Cleveland to the south seas on a voyage in quest of a "dream island."

Send Protest of Telephone Rates To State Group

98 Names on Petition Forwarded to Public Service Commission

A petition signed by 98 farm telephone patrons throughout Outagamie-co., protesting present rates of the Wisconsin Telephone Co., and calling for a public hearing, was forwarded to the Public Service Commission today. Only 25 names were required.

The movement to obtain a reduction in telephone rates for exchange service furnished by the Wisconsin Telephone Co. to the various farm owned mutual company lines was started at a meeting at Apple Creek on Thursday evening, July 21. At this meeting, Samuel Sigman was placed in charge of the campaign for the reduction of rates and prepared the petition. A committee headed by Louis Nichols also was appointed.

Members of this committee are: Patrick Garvey, president of the Freedom Mutual Telephone Co.; Albert Lubke, treasurer of the Apple Creek Farmers Telephone Co.; Jacob Schuh, treasurer of the F've Corners Telephone Co., and A. W. Mueller, president of the Twelve Corners and Mackville Telephone Co.

Protests Rates
The petition protests the service charge made by the Wisconsin Telephone Co. as being exorbitant and unreasonable, and out of line with economic conditions in which farmers find themselves during the depression. It asks that the commission order an investigation and hearing for the purpose of determining what a reasonable charge should be and requests that the commission grant a substantial reduction in the service charge made against the subscribers of the rural exchange telephone service.

According to the leaders no special effort was made to get all the signers to the petition, but in the near future a mass meeting of farmers and users of telephone service will be called, at which time all people interested will be given an opportunity to voice their opinions. It also is expected that a conference will be held with the Public Service commission at Madison in the near future.

"It's an even bet," Pittman told him, "that every western state will be Democratic this fall, Wilson, you know, carried California and it can be carried this year. My own state is one of the hardest for the Democrats to win, but I think it is safe this year."

From Edward F. Goltz of St. Louis, former national committeeman, the governor heard that Missouri, a doubtful state, might be his by 200,000 votes.

Goltz said St. Louis, usually Republican, would lead the way for Roosevelt.

will make a lot of trouble there as well as here, Chicago and elsewhere.

"Important Work"
"I did not have much trouble in convincing the agitation propaganda bureau that this was important work and the sooner we strip the petty bourgeois and the white collar stiff of his faith in banks the sooner we will bring about the unrest that will lead to the revolution."

"All of the other activities, Campaign, unemployed councils, Workers Ex-Service Men's league etc., are going forward satisfactorily."

"We will all hope to see you in the near future as we know you are in a hot spot. Yours for the revolution."

A letter written to "Dear comrade GH" read:

"I am very much encouraged because we have had plenty of runs against the big banks, particularly the big five in Chicago, meaning the First National, Continental Illinois, etc., and the Union Trust and Cleveland Trust in Cleveland and others. My work here in breaking down the outpost of the banking structure in Detroit by breaking the First National is bearing fruit. I have talked to a lot of the tellers and others in the bank and they are discouraged, which means good news for us. Our telephone propaganda is working wonderfully. I have considered this program for a simultaneous run against all of these institutions through the country and can see that it would be almost the final blow against the banks, but I cannot see how we can get them all going at the same time. Believe me, comrade, I sure have the president of this bank here on the verge of a nervous breakdown or something worse."

The reference in this letter to the "outpost of the banking structure in Detroit" was the affiliation of First National Bank in Pontiac with the Detroit Bankers Co. of Detroit.

Charge Moderson Stole Auto From Appleton Citizen

G. J. O'Brien, His Companion, Charged With Carrying Dangerous Weapons

W. H. Moderson, 27, Black Creek, was arraigned in municipal court before Judge Fred V. Heinemann this morning on a charge of larceny as bailie, and his companion, G. J. O'Brien, Billings, Mont., was arraigned at the same time on a charge of being armed with concealed and dangerous weapons.

Preliminary hearings of both cases were set for Aug. 5 and the two men are being held in the county jail under bonds of $500 each.

Moderson is charged with the theft of a car, owned by F. Hydar, 911 N. Harrison-st., Hydar said he loaned the machine to Moderson on May 10, the latter saying he only wanted it for a day or so. He disappeared with the machine, however, police say, but Hydar recognized the machine as it was parked at the corner of W. College-ave and N. Division-st. Monday evening. He notified police, who arrested Moderson and O'Brien, who was with him.

In O'Brien's suitcase police found a revolver, bullets, a "sandbag," several large bunches of keys and four books of alleged counterfeit American Railway Express travelers' checks. The checks all were for $25 and had a total face value of $1,000. The checks carried the signature of Moderson as the selling cashier and the name of O'Brien as the purchaser. Several checks were missing but O'Brien said these had been destroyed.

Police are searching the past records of the men.

County's Quota To 4-H Club Camp Is Boosted to 62

Large Number of Applications Causes Officials To Make Change

Outagamie-co.'s quota for the 4-H club camp, which will be held at Onway island, Chain O' Lakes, Waupaca, Aug. 4, 5, 6 and 7, has been increased from 40 to 62, according to word received today by Gus Sell, county agent, and Miss Harriet Thompson, county home demonstration agent. The camp this year is being conducted jointly by Waupaca, Waushara, Winnebago and Outagamie-co's.

The quota for Outagamie-co. was increased, according to Miss Thompson, because of the heavy demand from 4-H club members who want to attend. The increased quota will make it possible for every camp to send two, instead of one, delegate to the camp. The expenses of one delegate from each club is being paid by the Outagamie County Bankers' association, while the expenses of the second delegate must be paid either by the club or by the delegate himself.

All those attending camp, according to Miss Thompson, are expected to make their other way to and from Waupaca. If there is a boy or girl who cannot find a way to get to Waupaca, Miss Thompson has asked that she be notified and efforts will be made to find room in another car. Those having room to take more people to Waupaca are being asked to notify Miss Thompson.

WASHINGTON ALERT

Washington—Radical rumors circulated against the banks of the country are being closely followed by the United States Secret service, which already has investigated reports of a dozen or more such instances in a number of states.

The secret service agents called into the cases by the office of the comptroller of the currency, who has charge of national banks, have promptly traced in several cities the circulation of rumors intended to cause runs on banks.

In a number of instances the agents have found that the reports were circulated by disgruntled or hysterical persons and no prosecution has followed.

In others, state authorities have taken over the prosecution of persons circulating the rumor.

W. H. Moran, chief of the secret service, said his staff was intensely interested in such activities and would promptly cooperate with state officers or themselves investigate any reports of persons circulating untrue stories concerning condition of banks.

The chief said that in every case where the secret service had investigated the rumors it had been found the banks were in good condition and the stories were untrue.

Other treasury officials concerned in the affairs of banks said there undoubtedly were many false rumors being circulated which caused runs on perfectly sound banking institutions but that it was difficult to trace them to the source.

While officials were reticent in discussing the situation they left the distinct impression that every step possible would be taken to trace down the originators of the rumors and bring about their quick prosecution.

U.S. Plants in Canada Facing Trade Menace

Future of 100 Concerns May Depend Upon Action at Ottawa

BY FRANK L. WELLES
Ottawa, Ont. —(P)—The future of more than 100 American branch plants in Canada, representing an investment of about $500,000,000, was in the balance today as an Imperial trade conference committee took up the question of "empire content."

"Empire content" is the percentage of empire materials or labor which an article must contain to qualify for customs entry under empire preferential tariff rates.

At present, with certain exceptions in individual instances, the standard of empire content now is 50 per cent in Canada and New Zealand, 75 per cent in Australia and 25 per cent in the Irish Free State, the United Kingdom and South Africa.

What the conference may do about a blanket increase in the required percentages or in special restrictions on selected articles is of very real concern to the American branch factories in Canada and to American business interests supplying products to be finished by dominion or other concerns within the empire.

There is a notion among the delegates that the percentage of empire content should be uniform among the dominions and colonies with exceptions where necessary.

Consider Two Proposals
A sub-committee was appointed yesterday to consider the comparative advantages of:

(1) High empire content with exceptions downward.
(2) Low empire content with exceptions upward.

British industrialists want an increase in the British empire content rate. They argue that it is not high enough to prevent American manufacturers sending parts to Canada, assembling them in a Canadian branch factory, and shipping the finished product to Great Britain under British preferential rates. And if the British rate of 25 per cent were increased to the Canadian rate of 50 per cent, they have pointed out, Canadian labor would benefit in proportion.

American business leaders were quoted here as advising caution in Canadian branch factories lest those which merely assemble American parts across the border find their costs increased by higher empire possibility of an economic conference putting into effect lower American-Canadian tariffs as a result, perhaps, of a generally lower tariff structure among empire nations.

In conflict with this view, however, was a report in conference circles that the United States Steel company plant at Ojibway had instructions to expand its capacity in the event Canadian and British steel interests successfully conclude negotiations looking toward the latter supplying materials not conspicuously manufactured here now.

Follows U. S. Patterns
One observation was that Canada follows American steel patterns rather than British and that a change might entail essential failures. Furthermore, it was said, the United States, or American plants in Canada, have a greater advantage in supplying and serving the steel demands of a population concentrated 300 miles deep all along the border than has the United Kingdom which, after an ocean haul, must work straight inland for 3,000 miles.

It was understood the steel accord was making further progress than any other of the major bargains before the conference.

The unofficial American view expressed today was that while a possible agreement to grant freer entrance to British cotton textiles might cut in on the American trade, it was likely that women, particularly in Canada, accustomed as they are to New York styles and American magazine advertising, would be hard to win to British garments.

On the question of lumber a possibility was seen that Douglas fir and timbers from Washington and Oregon might be discriminated against in favor of that of British Columbia.

Canada and other empire nations have shown a tremendous interest in the United Kingdom's annual outside purchases of $26,000,000 worth of meat, $22,000,000 of which is represented by American lard. Pork and pork products constitute America's chief meat exports to the United Kingdom. British trade figures show a preference for United States bacon over Canadian but Danish and Irish bacon dominate the British market.

Expert Explains How to Keep Ants From Residences

Keep All Food in Ant-Proof Containers, Says Chambers

Madison—Among the three kinds of ants that are causing trouble in Wisconsin households this summer is a tiny red insect known as Pharaoh's ant, whose ancestors arrived in the Egyptian five thousand years ago. Pharaoh's ant is a native of the tropics and instead of dieting on sugar as most ants do, it prefers grease and fats says E. L. Chambers, state entomologist of the department of agriculture and markets.

Unlike the black carpenter and yellowish brown ants, which build their nests in lawns and fields, Pharaoh's ant builds its nests in houses, bakeries and other buildings where it can find a diet of grease and fats, the entomologist says.

A general preventive for all ants according to Mr. Chambers is to keep shelves, tables, utensils and floors free from crumbs and other food fragments and foodstuffs should be stored in ant-proof containers. This is advised so that any ants scouting around will not discover a food source and carry back the news to the nest.

Once an ant runway has been established the best remedy for Pharaoh's ant is to scatter sodium flouride lightly in places which it frequents. The sodium flouride irritates the ant's feet and they attempt to alleviate the pain by biting off the poison with the mouth parts. The poison then enters their stomachs and kills them. The flouride is somewhat poisonous and should not be left where children on pets can gain access to it.

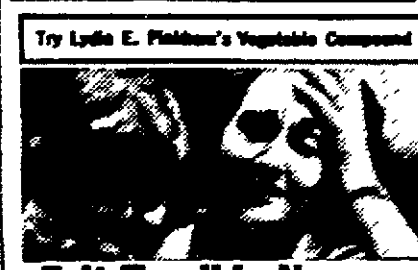

For the other species of ants a poison mixture made of 16 parts of brown sugar and one part Paris Green should be mixed dry and sprinkled around places frequented by the insects.

Where it is possible to locate the nests of the carpenter's ant and the yellowish brown ant carbon disulphide can be used to kill the occupants. A stake an inch in diameter should be driven down into the nests to a depth of ten or twelve inches and a tablespoonful of carbon disulphide be poured into the holes which should be about a foot apart. Soil should then be used to plug the holes and the ants.

ture mound covered for twenty-four hours with a piece of old carpet or burlap previously soaked in water.

Granulated or powdered calcium cyanide may replace carbon disulphide providing the openings of the ant nest are enlarged and a teaspoonful used for each burrow. Both of these chemicals must be handled with extreme caution because their fumes are deadly and should not be breathed by any one in a closed room.

THE SPOILED CHILDREN OF THE NATION

The federal government has provided 300 million to be advanced to its states so desperately in need of money—and that means more desperately than the Washington government—that they face possible collapse without it.

That isn't the language of the law but that is its intent and purpose.

Amazement seizes one when the list of the states and the amounts demanded are viewed, these beggars without actual need and without pride. Even under conditions as they are, there probably is not one state that cannot get along with out this money.

The law provides that no state may receive more than fifteen per cent, $45,000,000, of this fund. Immediately Arizona with less people than the city of Milwaukee applied for the full amount. Pennsylvania and California, each with hat in hand came limping up the capitol steps bearing the twisted smirk of the professional beggar.

Unless there is something rare, peculiar and unusual in the constitution of some state that delays action by itself to help itself, each state that asks for any of that fund is self-convicted, not only of cowardice but of gross mismanagement of its own affairs. It is using the depression to cover up its own sins even as those who habitually shirk all work are doing the same thing.

Governor Roosevelt has declared that New York will not ask for funds. He explained quite simply that the credit of the state of New York is in excellent shape, that it is able to borrow money for less than four per cent, and that although the federal government may borrow its funds at a fraction of a per cent lower than New York, he did not think that his state should embarrass the federal government with its woes, when it might, unless it be lazy and good for nothing, take care of itself. Is there any reason why that statement should not be made by every state?

When a state like Illinois permits citizens with enough money to hire a lawyer to defy it, refuse to pay their taxes for some years, and obtain an injunction preventing the state from selling the property, the only remedy the government has against a stubborn debtor, must the federal government, up to its ears in debt, look around for money to keep such a state going when all that is necessary is a statute by the Illinois legislature that no injunction shall be permitted to delay the collection of taxes?

A few more laws helping out the states which can and should help themselves, and we will find ourselves a nation with forty-eight spoiled children who whine all day and scream all night unless someone feeds them cakes, tarts, cookies and bonbons.

AL CAPONE'S NEW CIRCUS

Word comes from Guthrie, Oklahoma that Al Capone and his brother Ralph are negotiating for the purchase of the famous 101 Ranch and the equipment and trappings of Miller Brothers wild west show that go with it.

The Capones are fond of the show business, having had much experience in making it a worth while vocation. For some time they conducted in Chicago the biggest multi-ring circus on earth, well equipped with band wagons full of politicians skilled in the art of hoop jumping while rolling in the long green. Trained gorillas and sightless pigs were attractions in the menagerie while the grand finale of their show was always a Niagara of booze flowing from thousands of spigots.

At the moment Al languishes in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta while Brother Ralph is in jail elsewhere. Not because of any lack of ability in running their show business are they in temporary retirement. Their circus is still going strong with its daily parade of beer wagons and cash customers limited only by the capacity of the tent.

In the conduct of their business they forgot one important thing, however, as all good business men are apt to do sometimes. They neglected to divvy profits with a national government none too particular where it gets its money. Having been taxed liberally on malt, wort and other kindred products, the Capones may have thought they had made ample contribution to the federal treasury.

Capone, despite his slip, is not altogether dull. His present occupation of pegging shoes and handing out righteous advice to evildoers does not blind him to the possibility that the next ten years may see his present show business go broke in a legally tanked town.

No more rocks for him. Hereafter the "legit" is his medicine. And what could be better than a wild west show ready made for the gats and sawed-offs that he has on hand.

Yes, the Capone wild west show should be worth seeing when Al comes back from Atlanta and dons his ten gallon hat. As a gate attraction he can easily share honors with his cage of monkeys which he made himself out of Chicago policemen and politicians.

UTOPIA AND EUREKA BROUGHT TOGETHER

Levi H. Bancroft, once attorney general of Wisconsin and again a candidate for that position on the regular Republican slate, is presenting from the public platform a program that is a bit too thick for us to comprehend.

Taxes are sky high in Wisconsin, he states. Granted.

Taxes are so high and so unreasonable that industry and capital, seriously handicapped in competing with their rivals of other states, have been driven from Wisconsin. Grant that if you like.

Taxes are so burdensome, continues Mr. Bancroft, that thousands of homes, city and country, are going under the hammer because their owners cannot pay the levies made upon them for the support of the government. That too must be granted.

And now Mr. Bancroft, on a quest for votes, proposes a remedy, and whether a sugar coated pill or a deep sleeping opiate, you may judge. He "favors a law which would exempt the home of every citizen from taxation."

But he stops too quickly. Let us finish the story. Having exempted half a million homes from taxation we will pay no attention to the fact that the tax on other property will be doubled or trebled, but two years hence we will exempt all factories, all industries from taxation. This will make Wisconsin the Mecca for industry, machines will buzz and chimneys will belch forth black smoke, beckoning thousands in to profitable labor.

Two years thereafter we will exempt all business property and forests from taxes, which will about complete the circle. No one will pay taxes any more. That will be a good joke on all those fellows fighting hard for office. We will give them the offices and place wreaths upon their brows—but no salaries.

Thus at last we will be free of the pestiferous demands of government.

We are glad Mr. Bancroft started this noble idea. It will rank as another of the great spiritual and material accomplishments of an otherwise false and empty age, a sparkling jewel among paste diamonds and other sombre shams.

THE WAR ON ILLITERACY

The census bureau has revealed that on April 1, 1930, the United States contained 4,283,753 illiterates—just 4.3 per cent of the 99,723,753 inhabitants of the nation who were ten years of age or older on that date.

At first blush this seems to be a dismayingly large number, and the record looks like a disgraceful blot on the nation's record. But there is comfort to be got by examining the figures in detail.

To begin with, the percentage of illiteracy has been steadily decreasing for four decades. In 1890, 13.3 per cent of the population was illiterate; in 1900 the percentage was 10.7; in 1910 it was 7.7 and in 1920 it was an even 6. If the percentage is higher than it might be, it is at least dwindling at a fairly rapid rate.

In addition, the bulk of our 4,000,000-odd illiterates are getting on in years. Only 420,538 of them were under 21. Considering all these facts, it is clear that the war on illiteracy is making very good progress.

Opinions Of Others

FRIENDLY WILD CREATURES

Hunters and alleged sportsmen who think that the only fun to be had from wild creatures is the shooting of them might study with profit the example of the government in its efforts to care for and conserve the wild life in the national parks. There the old rules have been reversed. Instead of destroying the wild creatures, the government is making friends with them, and its efforts are bearing fruit in the interest which the creatures hold for visitors to the parks.

The winter just passed was unusually severe in the national parks of the west, according to a department of the interior bulletin, and the park rangers went to unusual lengths to provide food for the wild life. Where winter range is short and migratory game is concentrated, it is often necessary to supplement wild forage with hay, cottonseed cake and other feed. Sometimes, says the bulletin, small herds are trapped in isolated spots by a severe snowstorm and would die of starvation if not rescued or furnished feed by the park rangers.

Most of the wild animals in the national parks are harmless unless attacked and most of them, made fearless by immunity to the hunter, are actually friendly. Here such animals as grizzly and black bears, buffalo, elk and antelope may be seen in their natural environments. They are a source of never-ending fascination to tourists, who have never seen their like outside of the fenced inclosures of a city zoo or of a circus cage.

When savage and ferocious animals get in the way of men, they must, of course, yield to superior force. The trouble is men keep on killing and destroying after the need for it is past. Then they discover they have lost something of real value and make amends as best they can. Our government in its national park system is an example of this repentant spirit in full operation.—Albany Knickerbocker Press.

1. "I'm through, I tell ya, I'll never waste my time and money trying to play that $200 game of golf."
2. "No, thanks, I gave up drinking two days ago—no, really, I wouldn't be interested in touching a drop it's had for a fellow . . . what—you say it's real stuff—well . . ."
3. "And tomorrow morning, I'm going to get up at six o'clock and get down to the office and get things cleaned up before the rest of 'em get there."
4. "Sure I understand contract bridge—it's a cinch. Naw, I don't use any system. I just bid 'em and play 'em and use the old bean. I know how to play 500 and auction—contract's simple."
5. "Naw, you can't believe anything you read in the papers any more."
6. "Personally, I never touch a drop—except in case of sickness—but this 18th amendment . . ."
7. "Yeah, I left my cigarettes out in the car—can you let me have one . . . how about a match?"
8. "Furthermore, fellow citizens and voters, I stand on my record as having always striven to cut down taxes and to run the government economically."

The last of which brings to mind the fact that at least one up-and-coming automobile manufacturer last year paid out in taxes almost TWICE what was earned in net profits! Why doesn't business pick up faster? Dunt esk! Don't write your congressman—go see him with a gun.

Mayor Jimmy Walker of New York has achieved the idea of depriving the employees of New York of a month's salary. The deprivation started with Jimmy himself. A month's salary means not one darned thing to Jimmy, anyhow, and so we have another picture of a politician being self-sacrificing as long as it doesn't hurt.

COUNTRY PICTURE

Last year upon a little porch
As I went riding by,
A quaint old pair with silvered hair,
I often used to spy
Where side by side, the day's work done,
They watched the setting of the sun.
The little farm they kept was trim.
The little back yard was gay.
With hollyhocks and scarlet phlox.
As picturesque were they
And oft the thought occurred to me
How very lonely they must be.
Now summer time is here once more.
Again the road I fare,
But where they sat I notice that
The man alone is there.
And well I know one winter day
God must have called the wife away.
Now never shall I pass that house
When the cool breezes stir
The summer flowers in evening hours,
But I shall think of her
So stately and so dignified,
Who looked so lovely at his side.

DIATHERMY FOR PAINFUL SHOULDERS

My friends (oh, yeah?) who practice nervous imposition never fail to suggest, in their protests, that some day I may suffer a nervous breakdown myself, and then I'll have some sympathy for those who experience the tortures of hell from this condition. But I have sympathy for the thousands who suffer from nervous imposition. That's why I do all I can to stop further imposition.

On the same basis, I suppose I'll never have true sympathy for one in the throes of childbirth until—At that, I heartily concur in the notion that a doctor ought to have a sample of some of these afflictions in order to understand them thoroughly and feel the right kind of sympathy for the victims. Until my appendix, without just cause of provocation, went gangrenous I had always thought that patients suffered more or less when they underwent the operation. I know better now.

If having bursitis qualifies one to sympathize with victims of the trouble, I am prepared to shed tears of compassion for any poor geek with such a shoulder. Seems as tho the sovereign remedies for these common afflictions are always discovered shortly after I have got over an attack. It was so with poison ivy—I still grit my teeth and turn pale with distraction when I think of the long, long nights of intolerable itching I coped with just on the eve of the announcement of the new one-shot or two-shot toxin cure.

It is so with subacromial bursitis. Shortly after mine wore off in the spring, after a long, dreary winter of restless aching, the diathermy treatment was introduced. All I know is that it is some kind of high frequency current which is not heat, but in its passage through the body tissues raises the temperature of the tissues, in a way impossible to achieve by means of external application of heat in any form.

Prior to the development of medical diathermy—and here I wish to warn readers that it is not safe to entrust the application of such a remedy to any other than trained medical hands—the bursitis sufferer had to choose one or the other alternative—to endure the pain till the inflammation spontaneously subsided, which may happen in six weeks or six months—or to submit to operation for the removal or drainage of the affected bursa.

Diathermy changes all that. With rare exceptions daily medical diathermy for the first two weeks, and treatments once or twice a week afterward, will give bursitis sufferers grateful relief and cure the bursitis. The applications usually take half an hour. The relief from a single treatment lasts for many hours following, so that the victim can enjoy a good night's rest, whereas without diathermy he just tosses about or sits up and plans heinous crimes.

Again I warn readers to be sure the physician who applies diathermy, medical or surgical, is a man of good professional standing and hence of responsibility.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Along Come Pa!
In the Brady Baby Book you counsel parents not to have an only child. What is the best time for the brother or sister to arrive, that is, what should be the difference in ages? (Mrs. J. C.)

Answer—From one to five years after the Big Noise. If no pal appears on the horizon before the expiration of five years time to adopt one. A lone child in any household is a sad affair. Such a child doesn't get a square deal.

Science, Eh?
On the strength of your teachings and my own experience—I haven't possessed any headgear for the past three years—I claim going without a hat the year round is healthful. My science instructor claims that sinus trouble will develop, if not now, then later in life . . . (M. J. M.)

Answered—The science teacher probably gleaned that from—oh, well, I suppose we columnists must preserve the esprit de corps. There is no more scientific ground for this notion than there is for the old fog notion that one contracts some vague undefinable respiratory infection from getting the feet wet. It is always good hygiene to go without any clothing whenever it is comfortable to do so.

Girl With a Mole

I am 19 and what good looks I might have are spoiled by a mole on my chin with hairs growing in it. . . . (B. G.)

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

AS Duncy dobed the donkey well with paint he said, "He will look swell. I should have been a painter. Look! I'm putting stripes on slick."

"Perhaps some of the rest of you would like to paint some wide stripes, too. I'll let you use my brush a while. It really is no trick." "Oh, no! said Windy, "Not for me. In trouble you are going to be, when someone from the circus sees the crazy stunt you've done."

"You cannot make a zebra out of that old donkey. I've no doubt that when the circus owner comes he'll spoil your bit of fun."

But Mr. Circus Owner was a very friendly man because, when he walked up and saw the sight, it made him laugh out loud.

Said he, "You are a clever lad. Your painting job does not look bad. That donkey-zebra. I am sure, will tickle any crowd."

"You think my zebra ran away. That's why I came out here to say that everything is quite all right. The pesky beast came back."

"So, if you're tired of painting, son, and feel you've had your share of fun, you needn't finish putting stripes upon that donkey's back."

And then he added, "I've a treat for all of you. Come on, let's eat. We'll go back to the cook tent. One of you can serve the grub." "Oh please let me," wees Copsy cried, as he rushed to the owner's side. "I'll dish out anything you have and prove I am no dub."

The cook tent was a sight to see. Fine food was boiling merrily and Copsy shouted, "Get your plates, and please bring me one, too. Then all of you form in a line. This food is going to taste just fine. Gee, what could be much nicer than a great big plate of stew?" (Copyright, 1932, NEA Service, Inc.)

(Scouty makes the Tynies laugh in the next story.)

An observer remarks that a brave man with the courage to say No could make $50,000 a year in Hollywood. And all this time Senator Borah has been wasting his time in Washington for a mere $10,000.

Higher postage rates cost A. T. and T. $21.00, more for mailing dividend checks. But there are plenty of our big corporations who would like to spend a similar amount for a similar purpose.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York—Women go wild over the bargains in the shop-windows here now.

Those who used to get excited over such signs as "$1.98, marked down from $2" simply can't be restrained these days when they see prices slashed 50 per cent and more in the fancier emporiums.

Window shopping has come back as one of the great sports of the day. Even if the ladies can't buy, they love to look. I know a dozen or so who seem to spend nine-tenths of their waking hours wandering from one end of the island to the other, just window-gazing and wishing.

One exclusive establishment that scorned such a practice only a short time back, now resolutely displays their cut prices before the sidewalk mob.

Among the most pronounced bargains to be found are those offered by chic little shops on Madison and Fifth avenues dealing in various and sundry decorative triffles.

Most of their goods fall far, far beyond the category of essentials, but are always intriguing to the feminine mind. It amuses me no end to see an eager frau holding her unwilling husband by the arm, while she waxes enthusiastic about a window full of onyx and ivory gadgets, lingering behind them, the conversation one overhears runs something like this:

"Oh dear, just look! Those lovely things marked down from $25 to $2.25. We must get one of those just as soon as we can."

"Yeah," mumbles the hopeless man, his forlorn face figuratively turned toward the debtors' prison, "just as soon as we con . . ."

Sweet Revenge

Lean Belasco, the Odessa boy who made good as an orchestra leader over here, had one delightful experience in satisfying a pet grudge.

When the young Belasco was struggling along as a student in the university at Berkeley, California, he did a bit of dishwashing. An imperious waiter took particular delight in botching the lad. Years afterward, when Belasco had enough money to have someone else wash his dishes, he dropped in to the Berkeley establishment where his old annoyance was employed. Belasco sat at this waiter's table and "gave him the works."

Nice, eh?

Personality Puffs

Mae Clark once danced in a basement night club here. Amelia Earhart knows about cooking, too, in case you were wondering.

Madame France Alda told me she "insisted" that Lawrence Tibbett be engaged for the Metropolitan. When she heard the ambitious young singer, she was convinced he had what it takes for opera.

I know of no producer now operating on the Rialto with the flash of Morris Gest.

The silver topped William Muldoon used to be a redhead.

Mel Ott, of the Giants, learned to read and write in Greta, La. Jack Pearl, the comic, clipped a "man" off the end of his last name.

Today's Anniversary

U. S. TROOPS CROSS OURCCQ
On July 27, 1918, American and French troops continued their rapid advance north of Chateau Thierry, making their total gain in this vicinity more than 10 miles.

Defending German forces were strengthened by new regiments but they were unable to stop the onslaught of the allied armies.

Americans occupied Le Chamel and crossed the Ourcq near Fere-en-Tardenois. It was learned that seven American divisions, totaling nearly 200,000 men were in the battle on the Marne.

The crossing of the Ourcq was made despite desperate resistance on the part of crack German guard divisions. Losses on both sides were heavy.

Barbs

The Radio Commission reports that 12,000 persons were arrested as a result of police radio calls in a single month. What is forgot to add was the number of thousands who escaped while the officers tried to cut that static out.

The Dominican delegate to the disarmament conference has proposed a ban on warlike toys. Needless to say, the French delegation is expected to object on the grounds that the movie is contrary to French security.

It may sound a little odd, but Clara Bow is trying to build herself up in the movies by taking off a little more weight.

Treaty Would Give Midwest Own Seacoast

Ocean Ships' Entry to Lakes Likely to Slash Grain Rates

New York—The vast middle west is reaching toward the sea. With ratification of the treaty just signed between the United States and Canada, probably at the next session of Congress, the final stage of connecting the Great Lakes with the Atlantic of a St. Lawrence channel for ocean-going vessels will be entered upon.

The channel, which will add an estimated 26,000,000 tons of cargo to Great Lakes shipping the year it is opened, also brings some 2,000,000 horsepower to New York state and Ontario for division.

The power development, secondary to the seaway so far as the nation is concerned, is of vital importance to New York.

New York Claims Power

New York wants, and claims title to, the power, but whether she will pay some $150,000,000 as her share of the development expense remains to be seen.

Roosevelt, democratic presidential nominee, asked recently for a conference with President Hoover on the power question, but the president declined. The governor has insisted the power must belong publicly to the state, not to private developers.

Contrary to popular belief, the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway is no longer a vast project requiring billions of dollars for realization, between Lake Ontario and Montreal. A deep channel for ocean-going ships will cost close to $300,000,000, it is estimated. The most difficult problem will be a six-mile canal with two locks on the American side around Barnhart island.

The one other section to be opened is the three-mile Lachine canal, just west of Montreal. This project, to be undertaken by Canada, can be completed easily by the time the international section is finished.

From time to time other links have been forged in the chain of lakes, rivers and canals.

Welland Canal Opened

The most important was opened this year with completion by the Canadian government of the new Welland Canal at a cost of $100,000,000.

Here encountering the Niagara escarpment, is a drop of 326 feet. For years gigantic dredges have been at work at widely scattered points.

Today the last important link to be forged is the 48-mile "international rapids" section of the river made in a little over 25 miles. Seven locks, each with a lift of 46 feet, out-rivaling even the gigantic Panama canal locks, were built.

One of the seven, at Humberstone, is the longest in the world—1,380 feet. The channel, 310 feet wide and 30 feet deep, is capable of handling 95 per cent of the ocean carriers.

Recently the Canadian parliament voted to take over the Beauharnois canal, connecting Lake Francis and St. Louis, between Ogdensburg, N. Y., and Montreal. This canal, 14 miles long, is nearing completion.

Section Nearly Done

A 27-foot channel through the Thousand Islands section will be virtually complete this year, allowing ships from the lakes to proceed 250 miles farther east than ever before. This is a 67-mile stretch.

Meanwhile huge dredges are at work in harbors and channels of the Great Lakes. Last year congress appropriated almost $300,000,000 to deepen these channels from 20 to 27 feet.

Altogether the various developments indicate that within four to eight years ocean freighters will be docking at Great Lakes ports.

Some of the largest cities in the country, including Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Toledo, will be reached by the waterway. Duluth ranks second only to New York as a port in point of tonnage.

The net value of Great Lakes shipping reached a total of $2,496,000,000 in 1928, the banner year, or 258,000,000 cargo tons in 1929.

Huge Tonnage Foreseen

President Hoover, when secretary of commerce, caused a survey of canal possibilities to be made in 1926. The lowest estimate was that 26,000,000 tons would be carried through the canal the year it is opened.

It is estimated that wheat could be carried from Duluth to Liverpool from 8 to 10 cents cheaper on the bushel via the waterway.

Midwestern ports, teeming with commerce and seeking shorter and cheaper transportation, have pressed the waterway plan with more vigor as the result of the shipment of wheat this season from Alberta and Saskatchewan by way of the New Hudson bay route.

HERE ARE SCENES AND FIGURES IN "TEXAS JACK" GARNER'S COLORFUL CAREER

Mrs. Garner who has served as his secretary at Washington. The center photo depicts him as plain farmer, Jack Garner, assisting in the harvest of the pecan crop on his Texas ranch. In the inset the Garner of 30 years ago from a picture on his campaign button when, as a young farmer, he rode out of the chaparral down in South Texas to campaign for a seat in Congress. Below is Garner (left) conferring with William Gibbs McAdoo, wartime secretary of the treasury, who directed Garner's campaign at Chi-

See Break Between East and West as Result of Battle

McAdoo's Revenge on Al Smith May Injure Roosevelt's Chances

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Chicago—William Gibbs McAdoo came out of the west—a gaunt, gray ghost—to place an obliterating doom on the grim ambition of virile Alfred E. Smith, who had smashed McAdoo's own high hope eight years before.

Such is the third act of a great personal political drama which has seen Smith and Franklin D. Roosevelt allied against McAdoo, Smith against Roosevelt and finally McAdoo and Roosevelt against Smith. Not until next November can it be told whether there will be a happy ending for anyone concerned.

William Gibbs McAdoo, besides presenting his drama of political vengeance which raises the very important question whether Al Smith and his friends may be expected to fall in the Democratic line behind his two bitterest foes completed a picture of extraordinary clarity which revealed the relatively agrarian, progressive, crusading west and south sharply aligned against the industrial, urban, conservative east.

Recalls Bryan Days

The sectional lineup, so highly reminiscent of the old Bryan days of the Wilson election victory of 1916 and of McAdoo's bid for the nomination in 1924, was made clean cut when McAdoo led California and Texas into the Roosevelt camp. It meant that every convention vote west of Illinois and south of the Mason Dixon line was Roosevelt's.

And the refusal of Massachusetts, New Jersey, most of New York—Tammany and its allies—Connecticut and part of Ohio to jump on the fourth ballot bandwagon indicated the difficulty Roosevelt may have in carrying the large electoral vote of that northern tier of states extending from the Mississippi river to Cape Cod. Without Smith's active support his prospects of carrying any large eastern city are likely to be dim.

To White House

McAdoo, the able war-time secretary of the treasury, son-in-law of Wilson, unsuccessful "crown prince" candidate for nomination in 1920, moved to California about 10 years ago inspired by presidential ambitions. He knew he could not have his home state delegation if he maintained residence in New York. He marched back into Madison Square Garden in 1924 progressive, dry candidate of the west and south, with hundreds of their delegates.

There he met Al Smith, candidate of the wet, eastern machine bosses who took full advantage of McAdoo's Ku Klux Klan support and former law connections with E. L. Doheny and ended his presidential ambitions in a long, lingering death.

McAdoo had a plurality of delegates but never a majority. Roosevelt was the nominator, the ardent friend and a leading strategist of Smith at that convention.

Smith kept on being elected governor of New York and became the inevitable Democratic nominee of 1928, placed in nomination by Roosevelt as the "Happy Warrior," while McAdoo lapsed into the generally conceded status of a has-been.

Foed Developed

After 1928, the Democrats of south and west, badly battered by effects of religious prejudice, swore they would not nominate Smith again. They eagerly signed up with Roosevelt, now New York's governor. It was the old McAdoo set-up.

Meanwhile the Smith-Roosevelt feud developed, thanks to Smith's resentment at Roosevelt's failure to maintain close relations. And steadily the country learned that the forgotten McAdoo, burning in at the head of a slate of delegates pledged to Speaker Jack Garner, had won the California delegation of 44 in a primary flight originally scheduled as between Roosevelt and Smith.

What went on in McAdoo's mind as he considered the sworn intent of his old enemy to defeat Roosevelt at all cost and saw his other old enemies—led by Boss Frank Hague of New Jersey—lining up behind Smith, only can be imagined.

Balance of Power

But it was obvious to him that the 90 votes of Texas and California, both old McAdoo states which he and Garner controlled, were all that Roosevelt lacked to complete an alignment against the east of the whole western-southern strength plus scattered strength from the more rural eastern sections.

Garner, loyal son of the southwest, joined with him to break the deadlock to smash the eastern boss es, Hague, Curry of Tammany Hall and the lesser fellows, to bring the favorite sons on to the bandwagon in a final rush and to administer what was perhaps a coup de grace to Al Smith.

McAdoo went on the platform for his big moment, marking the end of the stop-Roosevelt flight led by Smith. The futile but tremendous boing which threatened to drown him out was exactly the same sort of boing to the accompaniment of which he had been strangled in 1924. And the great cheer that went up was the cheer, somewhat augmented, of the McAdoo men of Madison Square.

McAdoo stood and smiled until he was able to finish. He was re-joining dozens of the very leaders who had forgotten his battle of 1924.

Al Smith Alone

Al Smith, who knew what was coming, was off almost alone in a hotel room, from which he departed without a word of comment. It was the same Al who had come to town confidently, belligerently and full of wisecracks only a week before.

There are those who suggest that the Roosevelt managers, when they let McAdoo have his big moment, were only making one more of the boneheaded blunders which they perpetrated here so frequently. McAdoo, they say, is identified with the old Klan in the minds of millions of voters. But McAdoo doubtless insisted on it. He is running for the Senate this year and if he loses that race and Roosevelt is elected he presumably can have a cabinet job or almost anything else he wants.

Many Varieties of Fish are Kept in Farmer's Aquarium

Neillsville—(P)— Paul Klauer, Clark-co farmer, keeps fish just as one would domestic fowl or animals about the farmyard.

In a marshy meadow adjoining his farm yard, Mr. Klauer has excavated and banked a hole 40 by 60 feet in size. A spring keeps the cavity filled with fresh, cold water.

When the state conservation commission refused to stock his pond with fish, Mr. Klauer, with a large milk can, gradually filled his "aquarium" with many varieties of fish collected from nearby lakes and streams. He estimates that there are at least 1,000 fish in his pond today, including trout, bass, sunfish, crappies, pumpkin seeds and perch.

With the same care that Mrs. Klauer administers to her barnyard fowls and animals, she has placed the fish on a cottage cheese diet. And to protect them from dragnet fishermen, Mr. Klauer has driven stakes at a regular intervals into the bottom of the pool and has built a platform in the center

Denunciation of Jews Is One of Hitler's Creeds

Anti-Semitism Has Long Been One of Leader's Chief "Peevish"

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of three articles on Adolf Hitler. It states why a good section of German citizenship fears his possible accession to power.

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Berlin—P.—Of Germany's 63,000,000 inhabitants there is one element, comprising at least 500,000, which seems doomed to a period of social ostracism, and treatment as second class citizens if the July 31 elections give Hitler's nazis control of Germany. That element is the Jews.

Anti-Semitism is a cardinal doctrine in the creed of Adolf Hitler. "Juda verreckt" ("Perish the Jews") is as much of a slogan for wearers of the brown shirt as is "Down with capitalism" for communists.

On every nazi book stand one finds a pamphlet of 160 pages titled, "Adolf Hitler's Speeches." It begins with his platform utterances in 1922, a year before he attempted his "beer cellar putsch" at Munich.

One of his first public addresses was delivered while a world economic conference was meeting at Genoa in April, 1922. Speaking at Munich, Hitler warned that "democracy is in principle not German, but Jewish." He also claimed that "the Jews incited the broad masses of the German people into the 'November insanity'" (meaning the overthrow of the Hohenzollerns in November, 1918).

A few months later Walter Rathenau, Germany's Jewish foreign minister, was assassinated and Hitler said the murder was due solely to the fact that the Jews were undeservedly given positions of prominence.

On April 13, 1922, a whole speech was devoted to the thesis that "the Jew and the world's stock exchanges were responsible for the world war."

More recently Hitler has been more moderate in his language. In private talks he even states that "decent Jews" have nothing to fear.

In practice, however, the anti-Semitism continues with nazi pressure exerted in all directions. Even the Von Papen cabinet, close though it is to the nazis, was severely criticized when it appointed a man of Jewish antecedents as chief of the government press department, and a half-Jew as under-secretary of finance.

The most recent example was furnished on June 24, when the Hitlerites introduced a bill in the Prussian diet demanding the possessions of all east European Jews who have entered Germany since August 1, 1914, be confiscated on the ground that Jews belong to "a race which does not work productively, but merely grasps."

Another motion demanded the compilation of a list of all Jews employed in Prussian state operas and state theaters. The intention was obvious—to oust all Jewish artists.

A German movie concern has dropped its Jewish stars because it fears that films in which they appear may call forth interruptions by the nazis.

Thus, although Hitler himself is not as rabidly anti-Semitic as he used to be the half million Germans who still cling to the Jewish faith, and untold Christians with Jewish antecedents, are viewing the growth of his party with genuine alarm.

Rainfall Needed Over Large Portion of U. S.

Washington—(P)—High temperatures and scant rainfall during the past week were reported today by the weather bureau to have accentuated the general need for moisture throughout the country.

Temperatures in much of the interior were more moderate during the last few days, but warm weather continued over the greater portion of the nation. Rainfall was decidedly of a local character.

The last few days brought good local rains to many places in western Ohio, the central Mississippi valleys and the lake regions, but many localities were missed. Elsewhere the precipitation was mostly light, with the western third of the country having virtually a rainless week.

They are shown after the ceremony, before Mrs. Pike departed to seek proof that her husband was a victim of mistaken identity in the murder of an aged Fort Harrison resident.

Married Judges not so Easily Fooled by Women

BY DOROTHY DIX

The women of Australia are demanding that only married judges shall be permitted to try divorce and breach-of-promise cases. They feel that no bachelor is fitted to pass upon the delicate heart problems that arise in the relationship of men and women, and that only one who has been through the matrimonial mill himself knows just what it is that causes husbands and wives to become unendurable to each other.

On the face of it, this looks fair enough, but justice, so far as women are concerned is likely to be a boomerang that flies back and annihilates them. What they really crave is mercy, and this being the case the less a man knows about women, the more likely he is to be swayed by sentiment in dealing with them.

Take this matter of the breach-of-promise suit, for instance. The bachelor judge looks upon the plaintiff, particularly if she is young and pulchritudinous and can weep without her nose getting red and sees in her only the victim of man's perfidy. Here is a guileless and trusting maiden whose pure and innocent affections have been won by a dastard with a promise of marriage. Dreaming of her wedding day, she has gathered together her trousseau and the contents of her hopechest only to have her visions of bliss blasted at last by her false lover wearying of her and breaking his troth. Wherefore, she has sustained injuries to her heart that can only be healed by a poultice of greenbacks.

It is a sad picture as a bachelor sees it. Betrayed trust. A broken contract. A deliberate defaulter. And the party of the other part is so blameless. So unsophisticated. So easily deceived. So bereft. Stabbed by the hand she loved. Tut. Make the recreant Romeo pay for his philandering. Soak him good and hard.

But would the married judge in such a case be so sympathetic? I know not. He would know that any girl baby is born knowing more about the art of love than any gray beard ever acquires after ninety years of living. So he would not share in the bachelor's belief that the woman is always the victim in sentimental affairs.

He would know the arts and wiles by which girls inveigle, snitch, coerce and blackmail engagement rings out of men and the difficulty it is ever to recover one from them. He would know that a man who loses his taste for a girl does her a kindness and not a wrong in refusing to let her drag him to the altar, and above all, he knows that a woman who sets cash value on her love has no affection that is worth paying for.

So I think the lady with the breach-of-promise suit would be out of luck if her case came up before a marriage judge. Nor is it likely that the marriage judge would be more lenient to the fair plaintiff in divorce cases than the bachelor judge would be.

Certainly husbands, as alleged, know the inside of married life as no bachelor ever can, and by the same token they know that many of the grievances of which wives complain are imaginary, or they are incidentally a part of humdrum domestic life.

The chief thing that dissatisfies women with marriage, and that sends them under one pretext or another into the divorce court, is that it does not come up to what they had deceived themselves into thinking it would be. Many a young lady, considering that she has been a daily witness to her own parents' marriage and to the marriage of hundreds of people all about her, but every woman believes that her own marriage is going to be entirely different and that she is going to live in a world of thrills and tremors and hectic romance with a husband who remains an impassioned lover and in a home that automatically functions without work or money.

Of course, this never happens, and when she finds out that she has to cook and scrub and pinch pennies she votes marriage a failure. When her husband comes home too tired of an evening to take her out to any place of amusement, she considers herself neglected, and when she takes it for granted that she has sense enough to know that a man who spends his life toiling to make her comfortable still loves her without his telling her so every day, she wails out that he has ceased to care for her.

Every married man knows these things and so the married judge will take with a pinch of salt the abused wife's tale of her husband's brutality and reflect that it probably consisted in nothing more than the poor man forgetting the anniversary of their wedding or refusing to buy a new car.

Also, the married judge, who has had experience in the ways of women, will know that when a horse is wrecked it is always an inside job and that as a rule, the wife has had as much part in it as the man. Also, he knows that by looking at a woman when she has her best complexion and her good manners on you can never tell what she is in private life with the make-up off.

So I think if I were a lady and wanting an easy divorce and alimony I would trust my luck to the bachelor judge rather than to the married man who has all of the inside dope on matrimony.

THE STORY OF SUE
By Margery Hale

THE path was tangled with black ice-covered vines, that hung low. There were no tracks. No one else had followed the snowy way. Sue remembered Jack's warning that she should be careful. She laughed a little low laugh. There was no danger at all. George Burns would never come seeking her in this lonely place. She decided to cross the brook to a more sheltered path on the other side. The small bridge was in front of her.

But the water itself was silver-green and frozen firmly. She wondered if it would stand the weight of skating. She decided to test it. The brook, she knew, was only a few feet deep—never more than four—so she would be perfectly safe if a weak place did appear. She walked down the stream for a few feet.

"Hard as a rock," she told herself. "I'm going skating." She hurried home, got her skates, and suddenly decided that she would wait until Sarah. She would like it, too. But Sarah had an appointment. "But I'll come out later in the afternoon," she promised.

"Have Ted come and stay for dinner," Sue caroled back blithely. "Jack comes in on the 6:09." Then she went back to the brook. The sky was gray but clear. She fastened on her skates and started down the silver slide. She liked the swinging rhythm of motion. She felt young and free and as light as a feather. She glided down the brook, with the wind singing at her back and the world dancing past. "I need exercise," she told herself, scarcely aware that she spoke out loud. "I'll skate every day. And Jack should, too."

She went on, faster and faster and faster. Finally, realizing that she had come a long distance, she left the stream and sat down to rest. A log, nearby, was sheltered from the wind, by the back of a tree. She was warm, flushed, excited. She felt that it didn't matter if Jack had a position or not, or if his father wanted him in his firm or not. Life was good anyway. There was something happy and exhilarating in this cold, sparkling world.

She glanced down the path through the forest. Then very slowly, but completely, the mist made her pause. There was the figure of a man crouching in the snow. No, not crouching, she could see as she leaned forward. He wasn't waiting for someone. Something had happened to him. She couldn't see his face. But she knew that if she walked around to the other side of the tree she would see it. He was in such a position that she could catch his profile.

The wind, stirring restlessly in the slim dark branches of the forest, made her pause. She looked around. No one was in sight. She didn't know if the man had fallen over from exposure or if some one had injured him. But an inner sense of fear made her conscious that the man had not come there of his own accord.

She walked carefully, afraid that eyes were watching. She could have screamed but no one would have heard her. She glanced around quickly. Smoke was coming from a cabin a few hundred yards away. "That's funny. No one ever uses that forgotten place," she thought. All the time she was walking toward the body that sprawled on the ground. Now she could see drops of blood nearby. Brown blood—red blood—funny that it was two shades, she mused.

She was going to recognize that prostrate figure. She knew it. How she couldn't have said. She stooped over. Her eyes saw the face. Her color left. She brushed the hair with her fingers. "But—can't be!" she said, and her voice tightened.

How Wise Mothers Can Teach Caution to Child

BY ANGELO PATRI

The first love of a small boy's heart is a knife, the sharper the better. Naturally mothers are afraid of the knife and quite as naturally they forbid it. The small boy pleads and mother is torn between the desire to make him happy and to keep him safe. What shall be done? Teach him not to touch a knife? That would not do. We want to teach a boy or a girl, to handle tools with sureness and skill. If we make them afraid of the sharp edged things we cannot hope to train them in their use.

Fear is a poor educational force at best. Some fears we must have, but these are usually the instinctive ones. Children are afraid of injury and death. Their instinct draws them back. We rarely need to accept such a fear once the child has evidenced it. Usually a child is cautious in using a sharp edged tool. It is his lack of experience and in consequence, skill, that we have to dread. If we don't let him have a knife he cannot learn to use it. I believe that every child ought to own a knife and know how to handle it.

Put a sheath on every edged tool, the child to respect its possibilities of it. He reduces the danger and at the same time becomes conscious that this precaution is necessary. He becomes careful instead of fearful.

Small boys love hatchets. They like to take them into the woods, or failing that, into the playground or lot where they can chop to their satisfaction. Hatchets can do a lot of damage but I think the boys ought to learn their use. Put a shield on the hatchet and teach the boy that this is the way of all good scouts. No experienced woodman carries an unsheathed hatchet. If he falls he is not in great danger from the edged tool. With the shield snugly fitted. Without the shield a fall in the woods while carrying a sharp tool holds many possibilities of danger.

The best teacher is example. Keep your sharp tools sheathed in their leather coverings when you are not using them. Teach the children to put the guards on when they are through using the tools and insist that they ask permission before touching your tools, sharp or otherwise. When a child learns to respect a tool he has gone a long way toward acquiring safety in handling them.

Have a handy first aid kit and teach the child to use it. A slight cut needs attention and if you take a few minutes to teach the technique of the first aid kit you will be repaid by freedom from anxiety in the time to come when the small boys start off on the all day hike. There are pocket kits that take little room and weigh almost nothing at all. A small boy would like one for a birthday gift and it would cost so little that you would never notice the expenditure.

It is not wise to teach a child to fear a cutting instrument or tool. Teach him to use it with caution, to guard it when not in use and you, known as a Dessert Bridge, has will get farther with the idea and been growing in popularity.

YOKE WITH FLARED SLEEVES

Today's darling little dress is fashioned of yellow and white dimity print. Plain yellow dimity gives prominence to the cunning yoke that terminates in flared sleeves. Very effective trim is soft cocoa shade bias organdie binding that finishes the neck and edges of the sleeves.

And it is such an easy affair to fashion! Style No. 3186 is designed for girls of 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1 1/2 yards of 35-inch material with 1/2 yard of 35-inch contrasting.

French blue batiste with white polka-dots is very smart for the entire dress with plain white binding. Then again, you'll like it in dotted Swiss or printed voile.

Don't Wait for Partner To Bid Your Bridge Hand

BY ELY CULBERTSON

When a player makes a sound Opening bid, even though the chosen trump suit is weak, but his hand contains four honor-tricks, he cannot be greatly blamed, if such a bid is immediately overruled by a game contract in the same suit, for inserting a Penalty Double in the bidding machinery when it returns to him.

Commander W. B. Howe, U. S. N., stationed at Philadelphia, Pa., tells the story of a hand dealt in a naval Rubber game, in which he was the happy holder of the West hand shown herewith:

South—Dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

♠ K Q J 7
♥ 7 4 3
♦ J 10 9 7 3 2
♣ A K Q J 10 9 7 3 2

South made the correct Approach bid of one heart, and Commander Howe studied his holdings: A Double for a Takeout, he reasoned.

Your Birthday
By MARY BLAKE "LEO"

If July 28th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:15 a. m. to 10:20 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 1:10 p. m., and from 6:10 p. m. to 7:45 p. m.

The planetary aspects of July 28th are not very encouraging, and they convey a distinct warning against impulse and exaggerated enthusiasms. Speculation and anything hazardous should be avoided. The signs clearly denote that 'safety first' is the desirable policy.

A child born on this July 28th will, after weathering many storms of sickness, attain to a rugged and healthy adulthood. It will be gentle and kind, have attractive mannerisms and a sympathetic nature. Not gifted with more than average intelligence, it will not shine in any special line of endeavor.

You, if born on July 28th, have a very good opinion of yourself, and do not hesitate to voice it. You do not hide your light under a bushel, but bring it out on high so that all the world can see it. Although your valuation of your assets is excessive and inflated, it cannot, however, be gainsaid that you do possess ability above the average and that you have many stable virtues.

Your powers of conception are keen and your execution is invariably successful. As a leader, however, you lack the magnetism to capture the loyalty and affection of those who work under your orders. The trouble is that you award all the praise for anything attempted and anything done to yourself. When you win at sports—even though it may be by a fluke—you are the first to say to your opponent: "You played a simply wonderful game." The way in which you say it, is meant to convey the impression, however, that your own game was much more wonderful. You cannot praise the efforts of others without extolling your own.

If you cannot be the top liner, you feel disgruntled and hurt. It pays to advertise, but advertisements that are blatant often defeat the very ends they are designed to promote.

Board Votes 10 Per Cent Cut in Wages

Decrease for All County Workers Becomes Ef- fective Jan. 1

Oshkosh—In response to an insistent demand from taxpayers throughout the county, the Winnebago board voted Tuesday afternoon to reduce salaries of all officials and employees of the county by 10 per cent. The cut becomes effective Jan. 1.

As a further economy move the board went on record favoring abolition of the office of county agricultural agent and also voted to refrain from building any new concrete roads for at least one year.

Steeper Cut Voted

In deciding that the 10 per cent salary cut, the board took the recommendation of its committee on bonds and salaries, which had before it for consideration, proposals for cuts of both 10 and 20 per cent. The committee pointed out that while the amount of work assigned to elective officers of the county had greatly increased, salaries paid are identical with those of 20 years ago. In the instance of the sheriff and register of deeds, the salaries are lower than 20 years ago, it was said.

Emphasizing the utility of wage cuts as a means of reducing the burden of taxation, the committee pointed out that on the basis of the 10 per cent reduction voted, a farmer or city resident owning property valued at $10,000 would save in taxes only 50 cents.

Roads Held Tax Esters

The committee pointed to the building of concrete roads as the principal field for substantial and direct reduction of taxes and recommended a cessation in road building for five years. The board changed this to one year.

In the case of the agricultural agent the board voted 3 to 9 to abolish the office, but as the board has no legal right to take action in this matter at the present session, it was voted out that the vote is merely indicative of sentiment and that if the farmers want the office continued they can protest before final action is taken in November.

69 Cadets Perish With Sinking of Training Vessel

Loss Most Heavy for Germany Since Losses During World War

stant the wind whipped to the strength of 'nine' and the ship turned over.

"We put around and raced for the scene. During the dash to the spot, I ordered all hands to prepare the lifeboats for launching and as soon as we got there all the crew save the cook and myself went over the side in boats to aid.

"At the same time boats were called from Fehrmann light ship nearby. I can't say how long it was from the time the catastrophe until our arrival, but it wasn't long. All the Niobe's officers were lost except the captain and first mate.

"Our boats kept plying back and forth, picking up men from the water. Some of them had had to swim for an hour before we got them. Only six of the group that was attending class survived. They had been studying the theory of navigation.

A realization that the sinking of the Niobe was Germany's greatest naval disaster since the war came today with knowledge of the full extent of the tragedy, the appalling loss of life was added to the fact that practically two-thirds of our class of future naval officers perished.

Flags on naval buildings throughout the nation were at half mast.

Start Salvage Efforts—With an oil patch on the sea continually fed from the Niobe's motor room and a ring of buoys marking the spot where the ship went down preparations for salvaging her began. Authorities abandoned all hope that any of those on the ship might have been rescued by Laysan fishermen or reached shore by swimming.

The survivors arrived early this morning on the cruiser Koenigsberg. They were taken to the Wiker barracks and their condition was reported satisfactory.

The cook was the only one injured among the survivors. He was severely scalded when a kettle of boiling water upset on him as the ship turned over. He reached the deck in one jump, he arrived here only partially clad. Most of them had no caps, shoes or socks and others wore only duck trousers.

Admirals Albrecht and Kolbe, who are in charge of the investigation, said neither the crew nor officers of the ship were responsible for the catastrophe.

"When the squall struck the ship," a surviving cadet said, "the first officer had sufficient presence of mind to shout a command 'all hands to starboard!' But it was too late. Scarcely 30 seconds later the Niobe was on the bottom of the sea.

No More Survivors—This morning salvage vessels equipped with diving apparatus started work. All through the night searchlights played across the water where the Niobe went down, but no additional survivors were spotted.

Today the naval headquarters issued an official statement holding no one to blame for the disaster and discrediting reports that the vessel was carelessly or carelessly rigged under the circumstances.

Several of the cadets who perished were the sons of titled aristocrats. One of the survivors is Johann Hissink, whose father is general director of the big Bergmann Electric company.

The hopes of America will be pinned on these three mermaids when the women clash for swimming honors in the Olympic games at Los Angeles. Helene Madison Seattle's Amazonian free-style champion (left), placed first in the 100-meter qualifier at Jones beach, Long Island. Katherine Rawl, the 14-year-old from Miami Beach, Fla. (center), lost out in the 200-meter event, then rowed out to the 10-foot diving board and gave such an example of poise and skill that she edged out the famous Georgia Coleman for first place. Margaret Hoffman of Kingston, Pa. (right) won the 200-meter breaststroke event.

Cotton Roads May Create New Market for Farmer

Baton Rouge, La.—Highway engineers have come to the aid of cotton growers of the south and it now seems possible that a new market for cotton will be created in construction of roads partly built of this material.

Arnold Davis, engineer, and Harry Nelson, road builder, are firmly convinced of this. Both are occupied at present constructing experimental stretches of a new type of road using cotton and are enthusiastic about the results.

Davis, out of an engineering school only nine years, has been building roads in California, Mississippi, Arkansas, Florida, South Carolina and Louisiana. It was four years ago, while working on a road project in Arkansas, that he hit on the cotton road idea, quite by accident.

Cause Cracks—"A highway engineer knows that water soaks through the asphalt and gravel mixture on a hard surfaced road, and then the muddy water comes back through it," Davis explains. "If the particles of dirt left there didn't make it impossible for the road to seal up again, no harm would be done. But this mud causes the asphalt to crack and break.

"We have been trying through the years to build a road that would withstand water. I decided that the thing to do was to get rid of the water."

Davis was in charge of a road construction job in Arkansas. A workman manning an asphalt distributor had his shirt torn off by the machinery and it dropped to the roadbed and was covered with asphalt. The shirt was left there, ruined, and the road was completed over it.

Some weeks later the road began to crack. Davis was sent to find the cause. He saw the road sunken and cracked from rain and mud action, but one spot seemed undamaged by the elements. He dug through the layers of asphalt and found the cotton shirt of the laborer, water-proofed with asphalt, which prevented passage of water and mud.

Old Shirt—An Idea!—There was the young engineer's idea. Since then he has been conducting experiments to determine the most satisfactory cotton cloth and the correct grade of asphalt to use. Harry Nelson, a pioneer in road building, is assisting him. Road builders from all over the country are watching the experiments with interest.

In construction of the new road, large rolls of loosely woven cotton cloth are laid on the surface of a gravel and asphalt road rolled to a smooth surface. The asphalt from the base begins to soak through the fabric, and another treatment of asphalt is given the top. This forms a waterproof and airtight layer covering the base. A wearing surface is then placed on the whole road bed.

Davis maintains that the new method of construction will save cost in materials and that the road will wear much longer than present types.

"The use of cotton cloth produces tensile strength in the pavement in the same manner that fabric does in the rubber automobile tire," he explains.

Fatty Arbuckle Plans To Return to Movies

New York—(P)—Roscoe C. "Fatty" Arbuckle is returning to pictures. Warner Brothers today announced that it was signing the one time film comedian for a comedy—a two or three reeler to be made in its Brooklyn plant, with the possibility of more later.

The former slap stick star has not appeared in pictures since 1921, when he was acquitted in connection with the death of Virginia Rappe, film actress in San Francisco. Although he directed many films recently he has been touring the east in vaudeville.

NOT HIS HONEY—Charleroi, Pa.—A young man about-town, Nick Nestor, 22, drove along the street and saw a pretty girl walking. He pulled to the curb and said, "Hello, there, honey?" The girl, Grace Parkas, 24, replied, "Hello yourself!" and threw a tomato at Nick. As the tomato was in a can, Nick sported a black eye for several days.

G. O. P. to Point To Hoover's Wise Guidance in Storm

Plan to Praise Efforts of President to End Depression

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—President Hoover's general program for meeting the depression is commonly believed to be bolstering us up during this distressful period and if conditions do improve much force will be given to the Republican description of him as the all-wise captain who has guided us bravely and ably through the storm.

Criticism is leveled on the ground that he has acted feebly and inadequately or that the program is too preponderantly concerned with aiding big banks and corporations to the relative exclusion of the "underdog."

But it's Hoover's program and we are going to ride along on it, at least until after the November election. And it will be Hoover's funeral if the program doesn't do all that he has claimed for it. Any credit he gets of the sort that can be translated into votes will be measured by the extent of my improvement.

Handles Five Billions—He now has more peacetime power and more money to handle than any other man in history. Congress gave him everything he wanted and he was able to get rid of nearly everything he didn't want by use of the veto power.

Hoover and the federal credit and big business are now engaged in a mighty effort toward recovery, the like of which no one has ever seen before. It has been estimated that the president, through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and other creations of the 72d Congress, now virtually has five billion dollars at his disposal with which to make the fight.

The agencies lending and distributing the money are manned by his appointees and subject to his influence.

Resembles Farm Board

The minor so-called unemployment relief measures of the Hoover administration are not an essential part of the Hoover plan, which centers around the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and its loans to banks and corporations of a strictly limited nature.

The $300,000,000 available for relief loans to states which say they can't get the money otherwise may help to ease the most acute pains of the situation, but it isn't meant as even a partial cure.

The effect of the emergency legislation which empowers the government to lend nearly $4,500,000,000 bears some resemblance to the Federal Farm Board's plunge into the grain and cotton markets in an attempt to bolster prices for the farmers.

Uncle Sam is demanding high grade collateral for his credits to banks, railroads, insurance companies and now building and loan associations, but if things get worse he is likely to find himself loaded up as an owner of private businesses such as the Farm Board found itself piled high with wheat and cotton.

"Relief From Top"

"Relief from the top" is a term often applied to the Hoover policy. The president believes that if industry can have ample credit facilities the wheels of industry will before long begin to turn and provide employment.

The opposing theory is that the wheels of industry will not begin to turn until purchasing power is restored among the masses and that the benefit which "drips" down to them from the "top" will not importantly affect the basic situation.

But the charge that the big banks are getting all the R. F. C. money seems to be unfair. On June 30 the R. F. C. had made loans to 4196 institutions and of the 3600 banks benefited, 78 per cent were located in towns of 10,000 or less population. At that time some $643,000,000 had been lent or promised to banks. Big banks and big railroads had been making the money in huge chunks, as evidenced by the $80,000,000 loan to the Daves bank in Chicago.

The largest financial and business interests appear to be pretty solidly behind the Hoover plan. The largest financial and business interests appear to be pretty solidly behind the Hoover plan.

Cash Bonus Offer Interests Turkish Women in Farms

Angora, Turkey—(P)—Although Turkish peasant women have tilled the soil and done the work of a man for centuries, Melahat Hanım is the first Turkish city woman to be interested in agriculture.

She is the only woman enrolled in the Agricultural School of Angora, which has recently been reopened. The teachers have been called from Germany and German methods are taught.

In summer the students are given practical training on the Gazi's model farm, where they are provided with bed and food plus $25. Thus it pays to be interested in agriculture in the Turkey of Kemal, and already a number of young girls are applying for enrollment next year.

Socialists and Centrists which ran the government under Dr. Heinrich Brüning.

Would Outlaw Reds—Pressure was being exerted on the rightist leaders to eliminate this possibility by outlawing the Communist party, thus preventing its support from going to the other side. But it was pointed out that such action probably would result only in an enormous increase in the vote of the Socialist opposition.

A score of powerful orators headed by Adolf Hitler, released a flood of speech-making throughout the country for the Nazis, the Nationalists and the middle parties.

Former Chancellor Heinrich Brüning, also, far from yielding submissively to the rightist wave have swept him out of office, has been acclaimed by tens of thousands at his meetings in his home state of Westphalia.

Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, has gone on the hustings with sharp criticism of certain observations. Dr. Brüning made of his (Schacht's) political activities in the past.

The old Socialist leader, Philipp Scheidemann, who proclaimed the German republic in 1918, also has taken a hand in the campaign. His picturesque silver grey moustache and goatee have gone, however; he explained he was clean shaven for the first time in his life because he had to be so to escape insults from "young rowdies."

Helps Prince to Meet British Law-Makers

London—(P)—When the Prince of Wales wanted to meet the lesser known members of the British parliament he went to an American born woman for help.

Lady Astor, M. P. for Plymouth and native of Virginia, was acquainted with the royal desire, and forthwith gave a party to which were asked those M. P.'s who also serve although they only stand and wait.

The prince, of course, was asked, too, to the town house of the Astors in St. James's Square; he came and circulated freely among M. P. guests, who were drawn from all parties.

The constant efforts which the Prince of Wales makes to keep in touch with the governing elements of the country over which he some day will sit as king-emperor recall to many a prophecy in George Bernard Shaw's "Apple Cart."

Somebody Shaw said, a prince of Wales is going to kick over the traces, stand for parliament, become prime minister, and eventually rule the country in fact as well as in myth.

Says Governor Longs to Rule Badger Press

Dahl Charges LaFollette Irritated by Failure To Boss Papers

(By the Associated Press)
Harry Dahl, conservative Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, said in an address at Platteville last night that Gov. Philip F. LaFollette is irritated by the press of Wisconsin because he cannot control it.

"The millennium will have been reached for the Madison directorate if the LaFollette officeholders are able to promote legislation which will give them complete control over the newspapers," Dahl said. "It is the lack of arrangement of this kind of which the governor complains when he says the newspapers refuse to print the facts about his administration. 'What he is actually worried about is that the newspapers are printing all of the facts. And he doesn't like that.'

"I should like to emphasize the point that the officeholders who are now trying to dictate to the press were elected by the people to perform duties of state government and not to manage the press or any other line of business in this state."

At West Bend, Levi H. Bancroft, conservative candidate for attorney general, charged that no state in the union "maintained such an army of tax-eating government officials as Wisconsin."

"Records show," he continued, "that there are 10,377 salaried employees on the payroll drawing a total of $1,303,000 a month."

For several months after November, 1931, state employees were being increased at the rate of about 100 a month, Bancroft asserted.

Speaking at an organization meeting in Milwaukee, Howard T. Greene, vice chairman of the State Conservative Republican committee, said there is a growing sentiment for a state-wide union of taxpayers' leagues, as is being advocated by Dahl. A Congressional Taxpayers' league will be established at a meeting at Gays Mills Aug. 1, he announced.

Largest Plow in World Placed in Operation

What is said to be the largest plow in the world has been operating in Orange-co, Calif., and is described by A. A. Young, assistant irrigation engineer, of the United States Department of Agriculture, stationed at Santa Ana. It is the only plow of its kind and was designed and built to meet an unusual condition existing in the lower Santa Ana River Valley adjoining the seacoast.

Originally this area was fertile and but overflows from the Santa Ana River during floods deposited 1 to 2 feet of sand upon the rich soil and made it useless for crop production. Later this sand deposit was covered by a growth of Bermuda grass.

The plow is intended to turn the sand under and bring the rich soil to the top. It has two shares. The smaller one, which is of good size,

School Teacher Is Nominated in Oklahoma Contest

Man Bearing Name of Will Rogers Leads Forc by Over 100,000

Oklahoma City — (P) — A flood of votes today had nominated a comparatively unknown country school teacher with a magic name—Will Rogers—to make the Democratic race for Oklahoma congressman-at-large office.

Rogers amazed political observers by surging more than 100,000 votes ahead of Mrs. Mabel Bassett, popular state commissioner of charities in the tabulation of returns from yesterday's run-off primary.

Elmer Thomas, the state's senior United States senator, known for his leadership of the oil tariff and soldier's bonus legislative fights, won Democratic renomination. He defeated Gomer Smith, Oklahoma City lawyer, who had waged a vigorous campaign.

Wirt Franklin, Ardmore oil man and generalissimo of the oil tariff movement, had a comfortable lead for the Republican nomination to oppose Thomas in the November election.

Additional vote counting, however, appeared necessary to establish definitely the outcome of Franklin's contest with James A. (Big Jim) Harris of Wagoner and Tulsa, state Republican chieftain of a few years ago.

J. C. (Jack) Walton, deposed governor, spurred in front of A. S. J. Shaw, former state auditor, for the Democratic nomination for a seat on the important state corporation commission. Walton's lead was only 2,000 votes, however, and the result probably will be in doubt until a complete tabulation is available.

Murray Men Win

Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray's selections were victorious in three state senate races. Neil Taylor, Sam Carmack and Louis Fischel, for whom the governor campaigned personally, won out over anti-Murray candidates.

Returns from contests for the state house of representatives in which Murray did no active campaigning, indicated his "sheep" had broken about even with candidates he labeled as "goats."

Thomas, Democratic congressional leader, remained in doubt. Ray W. Hastings had forged ahead of Alex Johnston for the second district nomination and Rep. Tom D. McKeown held a slight edge over Bart Aldridge in the Fourth district.

The Fifth district incumbent, F. B. Swank, was trailing his opponent, O. B. Motherhead, former state bank commissioner.

Frank Franz, Oklahoma's last territorial governor, was leading Bailey E. Bell for the Republican congressional nomination in the First district.

The only election disorder was at Salinas, where ill feeling bred by a local contest flared into gunplay. George Mitchell, Sequoyan-co commissioner, was dangerously wounded by Henry Winter, a Salinas merchant. Winter was arrested and taken to Muskogee for safekeeping.

Start Trial of Man Who Killed French President

Assassin Doesn't Want to Die Until Son is Born

BY MINOTT SAUNDERS
Paris—Paul Gorguloff, Russian assassin of President Doumer, has decided that he doesn't want to die yet a while. He wants to endure as he expresses it, until after the birth of his son, which he anticipated in September or October.

This is the man's only hope. He does not expect to escape the guillotine, although his lawyer, the famous Henri Geraud, plans to fight hard for his life in the course of the trial.

The expected son has given Gorguloff a new interest in life, and the prospect of becoming a father has softened him. He at first was anxious to die.

Even if he is sentenced to death it is not likely that the execution will take place at once. It is the practice in France to allow a condemned man some weeks, even two or three months, before sentence is carried out.

In the meantime an appeal for mercy may be made to the president of the republic. So the slayer stands a chance of getting news of his child before the end comes, which is all he asks now. He always speaks of the expected child as his son, confident that it will not be a girl.

Gorguloff's Swiss wife, Anne Geng, who is 37, is standing by him and writes to him tenderly, trying to give him encouragement. She is convinced that he was insane when he committed his act, and she seems to have forgotten the brutal treatment which she often experienced at his hands.

When Gorguloff committed his crime he boastfully said he wanted to die at once and repeatedly declared that he was ready for the guillotine. He has changed greatly during his confinement, however.

He is no longer the inextinguishable babbler, ranting about his martyrdom and praying incoherently for his dream of Russia and the repose of the soul of the distinguished man he killed without any logical motive. His exaltation and his transports have given way to a profound despondency.

"Oh, the fatal date," he wrote to his wife, who is in the south of France. "My soul is sad almost to the point of death. My darling, poor Anne. You have not forgotten, and I am grateful. I love you, but do you understand now?"

"Destiny has been stronger than we. God gave me this political idea. God gave me the mission to save my Russian people. I am like an apostle of this political idea which is dearer to me than my life and therefore I had to struggle for this idea just to the death."

"Some devil got into my head, and forced me on," he wrote again, to her. "You must, you must, you must make this attempt, the devil said. 'You must protest before all, political theories, but otherwise ap-the world against the policy France and the League of Nations."

Then in the same letter he softened towards his wife. "Farewell, my darling," he writes, "farewell for ever. I pray of you to bring up our child as a good patriot and a good Christian. And tell our child, 'Your father died as an apostle for his patriotic idea, as the chief of a national Russian democratic political party.'"

Some of these outbursts are cited by the defense as indications of insanity, while the prosecution regards them as play-acting.

Gorguloff spends a great deal of time writing, either letters or said "You must protest before all, political theories, but otherwise ap-

Stage Fifth Annual Water Event Aug. 6, 7

Fifty Cities Have Boats Entered in Races at Carnival

Freemont—Plans for Fremont's fifth annual water carnival Aug. 6 and 7, were completed at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at the village hall, Monday evening. There will be four classes of speedboat races, B, C, F, and free-for-all, in two divisions, professional and amateur, for which cash prizes and trophies will be awarded to winners. The event promises to be Fremont's biggest water carnival with a great variety of races and other water contests. Speed boat races will be run under approval of the National Outboard association and will be sanctioned by the Wisconsin Boating association. Seventy-five outboard speed boats have been entered in the four classes by professional and amateur racers. Over fifty cities in Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Iowa, Michigan and Florida have speed boat race entrants.

All races will be run over a surveyed five mile course except the free-for-all event which is run over an eight mile course. Local boat races will be run on Aug. 6 and the main races of visiting boats will be held Aug. 7 beginning at 2 P. M. A pavement dance will inaugurate the water carnival Saturday evening and a Venetian night, with a parade of lighted floats depicting pioneer scenes of Fremont, completes the program. A 60-piece band will furnish music.

Funeral services were held for Leland Telock, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Telock, town of Wolf River, Wednesday afternoon from the church and the Zittau Lutheran church and were conducted by the Rev. Thomas Peterson of Zittau. Interment was made in the Lakeview Memorial cemetery, Oshkosh. His death occurred last Sunday afternoon at the Mercy hospital, Oshkosh, following an illness of 11 weeks. He was born April 11, 1925, in town of Wolf River. Survivors are his parents, three brothers, Arnold, Arthur, and Herbert, one sister Agnes and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Telock, Lelanders were the three brothers, and a cousin Lawrence Dorschner.

Public Schools To Open Sept. 12

Later Date Selected to Permit Finishing Touches in Building

New London—Contrary to first plans, public schools here will not open until Sept. 12. The usual date is Sept. 2, but more time is needed to complete the finishing touches at the new high school. Curtains are not hung, the bleachers in the gymnasium are not completed, and the apparatus in the laboratory is not yet in place.

Another reason is the fact that many students are at work and needing their money badly to aid them through the school year. An added week will help them. The labor day holiday coming just at the opening of school is sometimes a hardship for those who wish to leave the city but who must return with their children in time for the school opening on Sept. 2.

HAS A STOMACH ELEVEN FEET LONG!

NEAR NEW ORLEANS... HUNTERS KILLED 42,000 FLOVER, NO DAY.

ON BARRO COLORADO ISLAND, CANAL ZONE, THE TREES OF THE JUNGLE SELDOM FALL. STRANGLER FIG VINES DEVOUR THE OLD TREES AS THEY STAND, OR THE WOOD IS EATEN AWAY BY TERMITES.

THE JUNGLE tries to keep its dense covering intact. It strives to close up every gap that might let the tropical sun blaze through on its delicate plant life. A fallen tree would leave such openings, but twisting vines climb to the tops of aging trees before death overtakes them, and the leaves of the vines step into the places left bare by the trees' own leaves. Fungus spores and insects go quietly about their work, and the standing trees fade out, but they leave no vacancies.

Rain Monday evening broke up the drought of the past three weeks, checked marsh fires and proved beneficial to crops. With the extreme heat and lack of rain having caused corn to dry and curl up, pastures becoming brown and bare, many farmers find it necessary to feed their stock to keep up the flow of milk. Cabbage crops have also suffered from lack of moisture. Only a few in this vicinity have contracts for beans with the Clintonville Canning company. The earlier varieties are beginning to bear. # Tariff May be Big Issue in Next Congress

Empire Efforts at Ottawa To Have Deep Reaction in Washington

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Bargaining tariffs and the principle of reciprocity made famous by President McKinley may be the basic issue in the next congress irrespective of the outcome of the election.

The events at Ottawa, where the British imperial conference is endeavoring by reciprocity within the empire to arrange a new tariff structure, are having a profound effect here. Outwardly officials prefer to assume that America is not going to be hit hard by the changes for the last thing any of the Republicans hereabouts want is a discussion of tariff changes in the campaign. Doubtless what is happening at Ottawa will be taken by the Democratic speakers to be an act of reprisal against the Hawley-Smoot duties.

Americans Worried
Much concern is exhibited here now over the British tariff policy. The possible loss of an anthracite market for American producers is a blow which will strike new apprehensions in states normally Republican, like Pennsylvania. The last session of congress saw party lines break down in the consideration of tariffs and many of the Democrats who voted for excise duties that amount to prohibitive tariffs justified their position on the ground that if there is to be tariff protection as a national policy, their respective states must receive the benefit thereof.

The true significance of the Ottawa conference, however, may not be in the direction it now is taking. It may result in such a disarrangement of the tariff structure of the world as to bring about an international conference or separate conferences between nations affected. Reciprocal tariffs have been advocated ever since the beginning of the depression as one way to enable Europe to pay debts to America and as a means of aiding European countries to establish firmly the gold standard.

If there are international conferences on the tariff it will mean mutual concessions. It does not mean an abandonment of the protective principle for free trade any more than it involves a maintenance of existing duties on products that need more protection. It is a question of the degree of protection that should be afforded and the advantages that come to a nation which is willing to bargain with other nations with respect to products that are imported in larger quantities than they are produced within its own borders, or produced at a cost so high that it does not permit of competition with foreign articles.

Some Tariffs Embargoed
The idea of maintaining competition has, however, been gradually fading out of the picture in recent years. Indeed some of the tariffs levied in the last congress were nothing more than embargoes. As long as there is no reprisal or retaliation, the governments involved take no forward steps. The Ottawa conference is the first important reprisal, though by no means heralded as such. The French quota system is a retaliation against American tariff duties.

Before long the tariff war will have to be ended by a peace conference. Loath as many nations, including the United States, are to permit a question always regarded as domestic to be considered at an international conference, the drift is toward such a discussion after all. The effort to separate the war debts from reparations is now pronounced by Senator Borah as impractical. So also may the tariff problem become a reality rather than a theory in international diplomacy and bring about new commercial agreements between different nations. This may or may not take the form of treaties between

A BOOK A DAY

BY BRUCE CATTON
We Begin
Every school boy, naturally, knows that the Pilgrim fathers landed at Plymouth Rock in 1620 and that they contrived to found a permanent colony after a terrific struggle. He knows, too, that some of them had lived for a time in Holland because of their search for religious freedom, and that none of them could get along in England because of their refusal to submit to the established church there.

But few of us know any more about it than that. The human values involved, the sufferings and two powers as distinguished from a general international agreement but the agitation for one or the other kind of truce in tariff warfare will be noticeably increased when the imperial conference at Ottawa finishes its labors and the potential losses to American export trade are fully appraised.

hardships and years of mental stress that the Mayflower expedition involved for the men and women and children concerned—these things we can only imagine.

We get a look at them, now, in "We Begin," a novel by Helen Grace Carlisle, which is one of the brightest spots of the summer season.

The author centers her attention chiefly on three people—an English farmer, his wife and his brother, who form an odd triangle in the Mayflower's passenger list. The whole story is presented from their varying points of view.

One brother sees in the new world a chance to "get ahead," to farm broad acres and establish his fortunes. The other sees it through the eyes of a religious bigot. The wife sees it with alternate hope and despair. By looking at it with them we find the story vested with a new richness and clarity. "We Begin" is a first-rate novel.

Published by Harrison Smith, it is the July choice of the Book League of America.

He is well known in this community as he had been associated with the Boyden Bros. store for many years. His leg was so badly crushed that amputation was unavoidable.

The fifth band concert of the season will be given Wednesday evening at Legion Square by the Seymour high school band under the direction of Prof. E. T. Hawkins. Last week's concert was very well attended.

Thomas Duffy, associated with the Vandenberg Auto Co., has purchased the property formerly occupied by Henry Nickel, just north of the Methodist Episcopal church on Main-st.

Farmers in this community are busily engaged in the harvesting of grain. According to various reports, the barley and oats crop this year is a good one. Corn promises to be a bumper crop this year if weather doesn't stay too dry. The first rain since July 3 fell in this neighborhood Monday evening, and was of great benefit to crops and gardens.

The Seymour baseball team split a doubleheader Sunday when they were defeated by Cecil in a 16-inning game by a score of 6-2. They however, came back to win the nightcap from Green Valley by a score of 3-2. A large crowd attended the double feature.

According to census figures, about 22 per cent of all deaths in the United States are due to communicable diseases.

The Faithful Cheat

BY RUBY M. AYRES

Chapter 1
WHICH MAN?

FROM where she sat in the stage box between her sister and her sister's husband, Sondra Kent could see the two men whenever the lights went up between the acts.

John Anderson, very distinguished looking in the third row of the orchestra, was a trifle bored even while he did his best to be interested in the play, and polite to the woman beside him. Mark Merriman, in a not very good row of the dress circle, was finding it difficult to keep his eyes on the stage because they turned so often to where Sondra sat.

Sondra, nervous, undecided, unhappy, was turning over the most momentous question of her life, while Flora beside her disregarded the play and criticized the audience, and Flora's husband snored peacefully, screened by the curtains.

Whenever the lights went up in the theater Sondra looked critically at John Anderson. Whenever they went down again she thought of Mark Merriman, and wondered hopelessly why it should be possible to care so very much for a man, and yet be quite determined that nothing on earth would ever induce her to marry him.

Merriman was 28, good-looking, with a future even more hopeless than her own, seeing that he had nothing beyond his personality to guarantee him a prominent place in the long line of candidates all of whom were waiting at the gate of the future, hoping for something good to turn up.

John Anderson was rich, influential and 47, and both men loved her.

Neither of them had said so in so many words, for Anderson was a married man, long separated from a wife who would not divorce him, and Merriman had nothing but his love to offer her.

Merriman was not a sentimentalist who believed that little else mattered if only one loved well enough, for he had been brought up in middle class poverty himself, and hated it only a little less than Sondra hated it.

He had watched his parents stint themselves almost of necessities in order to give him a good education, and then after half a dozen years of struggling to turn his father's small and inefficient firm into a paying concern, he had watched that father die, a broken, disappointed man, and had found himself face to face with failure.

He had been quite frank about it to Sondra.

"What little there is left out of the rum will be mother's of course, and I might as well try my luck in some other country."

"Do you think it will be better in any other country than it is in America?" she had asked him.

"Aren't things pretty much the same everywhere unless you have money or influence?"

She had seen his eyes cloud over and had hated herself for her pessimism as he answered, "Well, I'm afraid I haven't either money or influence, but if ambition and muscle are of any use I ought to stand a chance."

It was then that he had mentioned John Anderson, half ruefully and utterly without hope.

Sez Hugh:

AT PEOPLE WHO START DOWN THE ROAD TO THINNESS ARE GLAD TO LOSE THEIR WEIGHT!

"If only a fellow like Anderson would take a fancy to me, and send me to one of his jobs in the Congo! I half thought of approaching him, but I daresay he's got dozens of fellows like me hanging round already, and we're only casual acquaintances."

Sondra had been silent for a moment before she answered slowly.

"Mr. Anderson is rather a friend of mine."

"I know, but all the same—" and then he had shrugged his shoulders and changed the subject.

But sitting in the box this evening while the balcony and orchestra cheered themselves hoarse over a musical comedy favorite, Sondra remembered it.

Anderson was indeed quite a friend of hers, she remembered clearly what Merriman would think if he knew how great a friend Anderson had proved himself in the thousand and one ways in which a wealthy man can befriend a penniless girl. He would be furious, of course, in the way that some men are furious with women who take extravagant presents from men who are not related to them.

Sondra only half listened. Her thoughts were far enough away. She sat looking out of the windows of the big car, her heart following Mark Merriman through the wet night.

She knew where he lived—in rooms, in an unfashionable part of the city. She had never been there, for Mark was not the kind of man who would suggest that a girl visit him in his rooms even supposing they had been the last word in luxury. He was very conventional, Sondra thought.

"It's such a pity John Anderson can't get rid of Evelyn," Flora said suddenly. "He'd make such a splendid husband for you. I hate these dog-in-the-manger women who don't want a man themselves and yet won't let him go."

"I don't think he minds," Sondra said absently. "He seems to enjoy being semidetached quite well, and I certainly don't want him for a husband, thank you."

"Decent fellow, Anderson," Ben Lomax put in apologetically. He was always trying to join in his wife's conversation in spite of the dozens of times she had snubbed him for the attempt; he reminded Sondra of an outcast dog, hanging tenaciously to someone's heels hoping for a kind word.

"I always liked him," he added.

"I should think he'll be delighted to hear that," his wife said, with sarcasm.

The little man winced and shrank further into the upturned collar of his coat. He had been married to Flora for five years, but he had never yet grown accustomed to her unkindness.

The big car stopped noiselessly outside a gloomy looking house with an awning and a red carpet reaching up to the curb.

"And now for purgatory," Flora said. "Ben, I do wish you would be less clumsy; you've got your feet on my gown."

Sondra stood waiting while her sister shook some imaginary dust from her skirt, she was so used to it—all the daily bickerings and one-sided vituperation—that as a rule she hardly heard or heeded, but tonight it all added to her soul weariness.

If only she could get away from it all. She was just as anxious to leave her sister's home as Flora was for her to leave it, and yet—how?

She had no money, and nowhere else to go, and her father had once said, ever either of them tried to be useful, heaven help them! As if they were to blame! They had never been taught to be useful—only how to dress and to make themselves attractive.

Flora swept up the steps to the house, and her husband and Sondra followed.

That was her life, Sondra thought; this eternal sweeping in and out of other people's houses. Going to bed worn out and bored, getting up again to face another monotonous and uninteresting day.

Was it all she was ever to know? (Copyright, 1932 by Ruby M. Ayres)

Sondra learns in the next installment, the true facts about Anderson's wife.

"Red" Evans to Take Mound for Appleton Club

Negro Aggregation Rated a Great Team; Game Starts at 5:30

APPLETON Collegians of the Fox River Valley league and the Chicago Hartford Giants, a crack colored baseball team, will clash here at 5:30 Thursday afternoon at Brandt park in an exhibition game.

The Negroes recently have started a tour of the state and are playing several valley league clubs this week. They are considered one of the best colored teams in the middle west and besides playing a good brand of ball add plenty of humor to the game with their antics.

"Red" Evans, the sorrel topped hurler who joined the Collegian staff last Sunday and turned in a great exhibition against Kimberly, will take the mound for the colored aggregation. Evans will be able to use his spitter against the invaders, something that a valley league rule keeps him from doing.

With Evans using all of his cunning the Collegians hope for a victory. The former Two Rivers hurler was a king pin in the old state league of a few seasons back and more recently has been with Peoria of the Three E league. The league suspended operations a few days ago because of the depression and Evans was signed by Appleton. He is the property of the Cincinnati Red Sox.

Other members of the Collegians Thursday will be Manager Leo Murphy, coach Eggert at first, Torreyson second, Weisberger at short and Donegan at third. In the outfield there will be Hillman in left, Bowers in center and Crowe in right.

Thursday's game will get started at 5:30 sharp so the boys can finish before it gets dark.

Yank-German Mitt Card Rained Out

Bouts Sponsored by Chicago Newspaper Will Be Held Tonight

Chicago.—(P)—Rained out last night, the colorful amateur boxing spectacle of the year, the international golden gloves competition between eight German amateur champions and a team of Chicago boxers, will be staged at Soldier Field tonight, weather permitting.

The advance ticket sale assures an attendance of between 45,000 and 50,000. Many tickets had been sold when black rain clouds rolled out last yesterday afternoon to cause a postponement.

The profits of the tournament, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune, will be turned over to the American Olympic committee. The German team, rated as the best in Europe as a result of victories over amateurs from countries on the other side of the Atlantic, remained as favorites to conquer the eight Americans in at least six of the eight bouts. Bouts of three rounds each will be fought in each class from flyweight to heavyweight.

Perlick Twins Will Fight for Chicago Fans

Chicago.—(P)—The fighting Perlick twins of Kalamazoo, Mich., will fulfill their fistic engagements at the West Side boxing arena tomorrow night, after all.

Valley League Gossip

GREEN BAY took over the Fox River Valley league leadership by virtue of its victory over Kaukauna last weekend. Shawano won both ends of a double header from Wisconsin Rapids while Appleton turned back Kimberly.

Wisconsin Rapids' pennant hopes were severely jolted as a result of last week's outcome. Bill Buche hurled the opener against the Rapids, allowing five hits, while Lefty Rubin was on the hill in the afterpiece.

Shawano and Wisconsin Rapids arranged the double-header late Friday afternoon to make up for the game that was postponed earlier in the season because of unfavorable weather. The games were played in record time.

Earl Biot, the Rapids' star hurler, found the Indians' bats packed with dynamite and his own inopportune wildness forced him to retire in the first inning. He was taken out when the Indians coined their third run.

Lefty Eastling, bespectacled Wisconsin Rapids pitcher, was called upon to perform the "iron man" feat.

Home-runs contributed largely to Green Bay's victory over Kaukauna. Irish Wall parked one in the Fox river after Becker had doubled in the eighth inning, and Mike Muldowney followed suit with another.

Lefty Fortin, ace of the Kaukauna hurling platoon, was not available against Green Bay because of a serious illness in his family. Fortin should be ready to work next week when the Kaws cross bats with Appleton.

Clarence Popen took up the curving for Kaukauna and fared well until the eighth inning. When he started to totter the veteran Marty Lamers was rushed in to quell the rally. R. Smith finished the game.

Eldon Becker, Green Bay's leading hitter, clubbed out four safe drives in five trips to the plate to boost his batting average for the season considerably. Becker is third up in the league with a .400 batting mark.

The Smith brothers, Red and Les, and Vils were the only ones who could solve Petzka's left-handed slants. All three collected two safe hits apiece, Red Smith and Vils featuring at the plate with home-run wallpops.

Waukechon, Shawano infielder, is the leading run scorer in the Valley loop. He has crossed the plate fifteen times thus far this season and is hitting the ball hard. Waukechon played with Keshena last year.

Shawano will break into action next week-end against Green Bay at the Sox ball park. Kimberly is scheduled to travel to Wisconsin Rapids while Kaukauna and Appleton are slated to square off on the former's diamond.

Sports Question Box

Q.—In leading off with a left, I was hit with a right cross. This blow dazed me so that I was unable to remember the instruction of my second and the fight was stopped. Can you account for this?
A.—Assuming your left was not a fast one or delivered properly, I can only believe that your opponent was set and awaiting such a move. The jab is only delivered to open a way for a crossing blow or to put your opponent off balance. If struck by a counter right, cover up and wait until your head clears. Never mix under such conditions.
Q.—Has Terry, now manager of the New York Nationals, ever had previous experience as a major league manager?
A. No.
Q.—When do the Olympic rowing trials start and where held?
A.—They are held July 7-9 on Lake Quinsigamond at Worcester, Mass.

Detroit Catcher Sets a New Record

Ray Hayworth Handles 337 Chances for Tigers Without Miscue

Chicago.—(P)—Three hundred and thirty-seven chances without an error—That is the achievement of Ray Hayworth, peppery young catcher of the Detroit Tigers, whose performance was hailed today as a major league record for backstops.

Henry Pierson Edwards, statistician for the American league, stamped Hayworth's work as a record after digging into the musty batch of figures.

This season, to date, Hayworth has participated in 67 games and made 260 putouts and forty assists without a bobble. In the last six games of the 1931 season, he had 34 putouts and three assists for a grand total of 337.

That eclipsed the previous American league record of 284 chances made by Johnny Bassler, also of Detroit, and the National league mark of 325 by Earl Grace of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Grace started Aug. 29, 1931, ran up 34 errorless chances by the end of the season, and up to date this season has handled 291 without a misplay.

Week's Results
Telephones 4, Outagamie Milks 2.

DON HOLLENBECK and the up and coming Telephone company softball team in the American league broke into the headlines again last night when they topped their third straight game. The Outagamie Milks were the victims and the score was 4 and 2. Hollenbeck allowed but one hit, that a single by his hurling opponent, Eggert. Eggert gave three safe blows.

Hollenbeck whiffed seven batters and Eggert one. Eggert walked three men and Hollenbeck one. The Phones had three left on bases and the Milks two.

The Milks opened the scoring in the first frame with a steady safe on an error, stole second and third and tallied on a wild pitch. Eggert scored the other Milk run on his single and a passed ball. The Phones also scored in the first, Bowby drawing a walk, pilfering second, going to third on a passed ball and scoring on a long fly to the outfield. Other Phone runs were two in the fifth and one in the eighth, the latter on a couple errors and a sacrifice.

Tonight's game will see either the Power company or the Tuttle Press ousted from the top position. The two teams are tied with two others for the lead but tonight one will have to step down.

Law Upholds Betting On Illinois Races

Springfield, Ill.—(P)—Parimutuel wagering in Illinois today had been reaffirmed—as long as it is done before sundown.

The state supreme court yesterday upheld for constitutional the pari-mutuel law in affirming the punishment imposed on State Senator James O. Monroe of Collinsville, who violated the law to obtain a test case. Monroe was sentenced to serve four days in jail for conducting a race without a license.

The decision protects horse racing, but is of no benefit to dog racing meetings which are largely conducted at night.

Chaff'n ChatteR

By Gordon R. McIntyre

Yesh St. Mary! MARY MILLER, Kaukauna, quarterback for "Slip" Madigan's St. Mary grid team at Oakland, Calif., was in Appleton yesterday paying a few social calls and wandered over to the Post-Crescent. During the short time he visited he inquired about several valley athletes of last year and talked a bit about the situation out on the coast.

Miller will return to the west within another three or four weeks and prepare for the coming fall's workouts. He has been doing a little training around Kaukauna and appears to be in the best of condition.

St. Mary will have another great team this fall, Miller believes, because all but a few letter men are returning. And the new men all are of the highest type.

Asked about the victory over Southern California last season, one of the year's greatest football upsets, Miller just grinned and said, "We were all set for them."

He went further to indicate that Madigan had primed the boys to the limit for the contest and had shown them slow motion shots of the Trojans in action the year previous. The boys soon felt they were playing the Jones aggregation every night at practice with the result the squad literally "went to town" against the Trojans and won a victory for their efforts.

The trip east late in the season when St. Mary invaded New York and met Dartmouth also put Miller in a reminiscence mood. He said the boys received a great reception in the east and mentioned that the newspapers and experts picked them to lose. They were rather soundly beaten in the first half, but later things started to click and the result was a big victory for the "Little St. Mary aggregation" as the scribes said.

Miller is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Miller, Kaukauna. The young man's father, better known as "Yockey" Miller, is a former valley baseball player back in the 'good old days.'

It's Not Over Yet
The Valley league race certainly has the fans who attend games regularly standing on their heads wondering who will take the top position next. Even Leo Murphy and Jerry Kral, managers of Appleton and Shawano respectively, are bringing up nights paying tax on electricity, figuring out how they can tie for the bunting.

Last Sunday Shawano furnished the biggest upset when it dumped the Rapids twice. The Rapids had led the loop before the afternoon program got under way. Kaukauna fell before Green Bay and the Sox moved back into first place. Appleton bumped Kimberly and helped even matters a trifle.

Only six games are left on the season's schedule but Appleton for instance, with six wins, can almost take first place providing the other clubs smack each other as they have done for the last few weeks.

The addition of "Red" Evans to the Collegian pitching staff has bolstered the morale tremendously. The former Two Rivers hurler showed plenty of stuff last Sunday against Kimberly and the Collegians figure he can beat any club in the league. And he probably can if his mates produce a few runs to help the cause along.

Manager Murphy now has the greatest array of local talent he's ever gathered together. He intends to keep the squad as is until the end of the season, win or lose or draw, because the fans aren't supporting the team well enough to pay larger salaries and expenses.

Didja see where Big Bill Lathrop has again broken into print, this time as a golfer. Lathrop, a former White Sox hurler, will be remembered here for he pitched for Appleton not so terribly long ago. In those days he served a mean hook and slice across the plate, something he apparently never tries now with the little white pill.

Lathrop was the "long" of an Appleton battery that showed "Shorty" Wenzel as the "short."

Legion Juniors Play Wisconsin Rapids Today

Officers of Oney Johnston post of the American legion and the legion's junior softball team are at Wisconsin Rapids this afternoon where the youngsters are meeting the Rapids in a regional elimination ball game. The Rapids represent the eighth district of the legion and the Appleton boys the ninth.

Appleton won its first regional game last Saturday from Fond du Lac. The Rapids was defeated Monday by the Fond du Lac aggregation. The regional teams are Appleton, Fondy and the Rapids. Their district is known as region four.

State Amateurs Begin Play for Simon Pure Crown

Art Lemke, Appleton, Competing in Battle for Directors' Cup

W AUKESHA.—(P)—Thirty-two golfers today started to campaign on the tricky country club course here for the highly prized state amateur championship.

Among competitors are the cream of the state amateur golfers—all survivors of two days of strenuous qualifying play which was featured by many surprises.

Perhaps the biggest surprise was the spectacular play of 16-year-old Dick Ashley of the Kaukauna Country club who Monday won two of his four rounds in 73 strokes. Yesterday's surprise was the game play of another youngster, 17-year-old Art Sorenson of the Menasha club, Madison, who went over the course in 73 to win medalist honors in the junior championship flight. He left even the seniors far behind, his card being the best of the day.

The day ended with a scramble of eleven players, led at 79, who tried to occupy five places in the group of championship players. A three hole play off settled the question.

Pairing for today are as follows: Richard Ashley, Kaukauna, vs. Roger Rodde, Milwaukee.
Gus Mitchell, Milwaukee, vs. John Blum, Stoughton.
Mel Pearson, Madison, vs. Adolph Jensen, Racine.
Billy Sixty, Milwaukee, vs. M. Reiersen, Madison.
Ray Smith, Racine, vs. Le Grand Brannen, Beloit.
John Shessan, Delafield vs. Lloyd Weber, Kilmour.
Hank Kavaleks, Waterford, vs. Wilford Wehrle, Racine.
Don McKenna, Madison, vs. Paul Jensen, Madison.
William Lathrop, Janesville vs. W. J. Snively, Janesville.
Lynn Lardner, Jr., Oconomowoc, vs. L. F. Pfeiffer, Delafield.
Eddie Hurr, Waterford, vs. O. A. Gregerson, Stoughton.
Dick Frost, Kaukauna, vs. Gus Mader, Brynwood.
Russell Johnson, Racine, vs. Ned Allis, Milwaukee.
Gordon Kummer, Milwaukee, vs. George Johnson Jr., Oconomowoc.
Myron Smith, Waukesha, vs. Sam Ruskin, Madison.
Eddie Lehman, Waterford, vs. B. J. Rogers, Madison.
Pairings for the junior championship were as follows:
Art Sorenson, Madison, vs. Beauford Melik, Kilmour.
Frank Wells, Kaukauna vs. Elmer Knudson, Racine.
Bowden Davis, Milwaukee, vs. Ray Billows, Racine.
Roy Anderson Jr., vs. Kenneth Krueger, Beloit.

Dan Courtney, Appleton, withdrew from tournament play yesterday after failing to get into the championship flight. He found the wind too strong Monday and just missed the select circle. Sunday during a practice round under better conditions he had a 78 despite several three put greens.

Art Lemke scored a 42-42-85 and entered competition for the director's trophy. Jim Murphy, high school golf ace, competed among the junior qualifiers and showed the 43-40-83 but did not enter match play for the junior title.

Angel Clivelle Matched For Bout With Oster

Chicago.—(P)—Angel Clivelle, Negro middleweight, puncher from Porto Rico, was matched today for an eight round bout with "Wild Willie" Oster of Boston, supporting the Eddie Shea-Kid Chocolate junior lightweight match at the Chicago Stadium, Aug. 4.

In another eight rounder Sammy Slaughter of Terre Haute, Negro protégé of Buddy Taylor, meets Paul Pirone, Cleveland, contender.

20 Machines In Operation At Paper Mill

Feed at Thilmany Company Has Been Increased Since July 1

Kaukauna—More than 20 machines are in operation at the bag plant of the Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co., here, according to William F. Ashe, head of the employment department. The plant started operations about July 1, and since that time has steadily increased its force. A new building was built to house the equipment of the plant, which was moved to Kaukauna from Waukegan, Ill.

The building was erected at a cost of $40,000. It is of brick and stone. About 110 men were employed while the construction of the building was underway. This new building's completion marked the end of an improvement program of the Thilmany company that concentrates all of its operations in Kaukauna. Two other buildings were constructed and another was remodeled. Upon completion of the new buildings, a stretch of concrete roadway was laid near the offices. This work was done jointly by the city and the Thilmany Co.

Each day there are additions to the crews operating the bag plant. This week there were nearly 10 placed in steady employment. In normal times the bag plant employs more than 100 men and girls. When operations were resumed here, difficulty was encountered with inexperienced help. Mill officials brought a group of workers from Waukegan to teach the new crews. This group of workers will return to Waukegan about Sept. 1.

Appleton and Kaukauna Nines to Meet Sunday

Kaukauna—Appleton at the local ball park is the bill for Kaukauna's baseball team next Sunday. With Appleton back in the win column again, the Electric city nine will have a hard battle on their hands. The Appleton lineup has been reinforced with the addition of Evans, former Three Eye league hurler. The addition of Dunn, former Madison shortstop, and Richard Smith, who played with the locals earlier this season, also should change the tide of the fracas. Kaukauna occupies second place and a defeat at this time would ruin the chances of repeating their 1931 pennant winning performance.

KAUKAUNA PERSONALS

Kaukauna—Miss Bernice Happer, librarian, has returned to her duties after a two weeks' vacation. Miss Happer visited in South Dakota and Iowa.

SHOOT ON THURSDAY
Kaukauna—Members of the Kaukauna Gun club will participate in a clay bird shot at their traps here Thursday. Shooting is scheduled to start at 12:30 and continue throughout the afternoon. Refreshments will be served at the grounds, and ammunition can also be secured there.

Fights Snake

Tired of wrestling around the backyard of his Dayton, O. home, three-year-old Gene Boldman turned his attention to the flower garden. A warning "brr-r-r" meant nothing to Gene, but Myra, sleek, big-eyed Doberman Pinscher, Gene's wrestling companion, sprang to the alert, hackles bristling, teeth bared. A three-button, 27-inch rattlesnake struck at the boy, but Myra leaped in time. When Gene's screams brought his mother, the rattler was dying and Gene was unharmed. Myra, twice bitten, was given serum and a chance to survive. Boy and dog hero are shown above.

The field will be ready for use this fall, but school officials do not plan to use it as a practice grounds until next year.

Fire Extinguished At Rex Pastry Shop

Laundries Check Weyenbergs, 7 to 2

Ludtke's Specials Again
Back in First Place
In Softball

Kaukauna—Service Laundries checked the winning streak of Weyenbergs Meats, 7 to 2, at the city playgrounds Tuesday evening to knock the Meats out of first place in the city softball league. As a result of the defeat of the Weyenbergs team, Ludtke's Specials, winners of the first half of the league schedule, went into first place. Several Weyenbergs rallies were stopped through brilliant fielding of the Laundries, while Cy Berg was invincible on the mound. In the last inning a rally was nipped when Berg pitched three balls to Conlon, Conlon whiffing all three.

The Eagles copied their second win of the season when they tripped Van's Buffets 8 to 6 in a nip and tuck game on the Park school diamond. This defeat sends the Buffets to the halfway mark in the league standings.

Wednesday evening Bayvegon's Butchers will engage the Mercers Transfers on the city playground diamond, while Kalupa Bakers mix with Van's Buffets on the Park school diamond.

Pigeon Club Awards Trophy to Heimke

Kaukauna—Frank Heimke last night was awarded a silver trophy by Karl Plotz, president of the Kaukauna Pigeon club, at a meeting of the club at the home of Edward Reuter. The trophy is the annual award of the Kaukauna merchants to the pigeon fancier whose pigeons set the best average marks during the season. The races were from stations ranging in distance from 80 to 500 miles from the Kaukauna lofts.

Pigeon owners are now preparing for the young bird race schedule, which opens Sunday, Aug. 14. Several training flights will be held from stations along the route until the race schedule opens. The club members will enter their pigeons in a special training flight from Waukegan on Aug. 7.

Commissioner Finds Rates Were Excessive

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington—The Medusa Portland Cement Co. of Ohio will get reparation for alleged excessive freight rates charged on shipments of Portland cement from Bay Ridge, Ohio, to various Wisconsin destinations, if the Interstate Commerce commission accepts the report proposed by Examiner Paul A. Colvin. The shipments moved from Bay Bridge to Manitowoc and from that city to numerous others in the Badger state including Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Neenah and Menasha.

Examiner Colvin recommends that the commission find the rates charged proper on some shipments but excessive on others. Examples of shipments on which reparation should be awarded follow: Green Bay, rate charged 30 cents per 100 pounds, rate properly applicable, 19 cents; Algoma, rate charged 30 cents, rate applicable 20.5 cents; Gillett, rate charged 43 cents, rate applicable 20.5 cents; Ladysmith, rate charged 43 cents, applicable 24.5 cents; Marshfield, rate charged 38 cents, rate applicable 22 cents.

The Appleton, Menasha and Neenah shipments were properly rated at 19 cents, and the Oshkosh ones at 19½ cents.

July Brings First Gain for Farmers

Boosts Noticed in Prices of Hogs, Cattle, Chickens and Eggs

Madison—(P)—July brought the first gain in prices experienced by Wisconsin farmers in a year, the crop reporting service of the Wisconsin and U. S. Departments of Agriculture announced today. Coupled with a rise in prices for such important Wisconsin farm products as hogs, cattle, chickens and eggs, which were materially higher on July 15 than in mid-June, was the evidence of strengthening dairy prices. Walter Ebling, agricultural statistician said.

The sharpest advance was noted for hogs, which gained $1.30 per hundredweight during the 30-day period. On July 15, Wisconsin farmers were receiving an average price of $4.20 per hundred while in June the price averaged $2.90. The price was the highest since September.

Hog prices at primary markets have again declined recently but the level is still well above the June low. Mr. Ebling said. Cattle prices advanced with hogs, raising from $2.90 in June to $3.30 per hundredweight for July. Veal calf prices, which have been rising since April, averaged $4.80 per hundred for July, a 40-cent advance from June and an 80-cent gain from the April low point.

Prices for chickens and eggs added to the advance in farm product values, the average price for eggs this month being 11.6 cents per dozen as compared with 10 cents two months ago. Prices for chickens were also stronger, averaging 10.5 cents per pound as compared with 10.0 cents last month.

Recent advances in butter and cheese prices at market centers indicate that the seasonal decline has probably reached its end, Mr. Ebling said. Butterfat prices paid to Wisconsin farmers on July 15 averaged 19 cents. Early reports indicate a strengthening in milk prices. June usually marks the seasonal low in milk prices and improvement normally occurs at this time of the year, Mr. Ebling pointed out.

Rabies Season Here; Board Issues Warning

Madison—(P)—Hot weather and the consequent danger of rabies today led the state board of health to recommend the Pasteur treatment for rabies victims and to issue a set of rules for the handling of animals believed to be infected.

The Pasteur treatment should be given promptly because death becomes unavoidable when the disease is permitted to develop, the board said. The disease develops slowly, however, requiring from 20 to 60 days to materialize in the human body.

This interval permits observation and laboratory study of the animal in the case. By this procedure it is sometimes determined that the case does not involve rabies and in such instances the Pasteur treatment is ruled unnecessary.

Methods of handling animals believed to be infected with rabies are listed by the board as follows:

Confine the dog or other suspected animal in a shed, pen and provide it with food and water.

If no rabid symptoms are observed in the animal within three weeks it is not infected and may be released.

If the animal is clearly rabid it should be killed without delay but in such manner that the head is not damaged. The head should be severed, packed in ice, and shipped promptly to the state laboratory of hygiene at Madison for analysis.
